

John Gray, Wife Wedded 60 Years

The business with his father and his uncle, George Hunter.
The Grays are the parents of three children: Daughter—Mrs. John (Zella) Soukup of Lafayette, Calif.; sons—Willard of Lodi, Calif., and Robert of Page.

There has been a four generation succession of father and son operating of the timber-claim-farm. A great-grandson, Veldon Gene, son of the present incumbent, may become the fifth generation to till the same soil.
The store also went through a three-generation ownership. John was in business with his father and from 1938 until 1940 with his son, Willard, who then became sole owner. Willard sold the business in 1942. His father retired in 1940.

John's brother, Robert, succeeded him on the farm until his death in 1934. At that time his son, Duane, took over. In 1936 the family of John Gray once more became owner-operator and Robert and his son, Veldon, are the present successors.

The Gray children grew up in the store. At one time living rooms were in the rear. Zella and Willard learned the clerking business early and Robert handled cream, eggs and poultry.
March 10 was the birthday anniversary of John's father, his granddaughter, Dorothy Gray Lund, and her brother, Jerry (eight years later), and of his brother-in-law, Ernest Wagers of Lodi, Calif., as well as his own wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray talked with their daughter, Zella, her husband, and their daughter, Barbara McNeill, of Lodi, and with his sister, Elsie, and her husband, Ernest Wagers, by telephone.

A display of orchids graced the buffet and Mrs. Gray wore an orchid corsage, the gift of Dr. Charles Bild of Miami, Fla., son of Dr. E. J. Bild of Page. The Gray and the Bild families grew up across the street from each other.

Camelias from Willard's home were a part of the decorations and a camelia was pinned on each member of the Just-A-Mere club. Mrs. Gray is a charter member (1919) of that club.

The history of the Gray family parallels the history of Page. They have witnessed the change from endless prairie to irrigated farm and pasture land, from sod-houses and dugouts to the "out of this world" dream homes of the present day.

Despite the sub-zero temperatures 117 friends and relatives signed the guest book presided over by Mrs. Carrie Townsend.
Mrs. Darwin Murfin poured and Mrs. Melvin Lund served the cake. Ice cream and coffee were served also.

Mrs. Keith Weyer of Plainview baked the anniversary cake, a four-tier affair, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Anniversary cards and gifts were on display.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Willard Gray of Lodi, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lund and family of Scotia; Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Murfin of Cairo; Mrs. Nell Gray Stevens and sons, Dale and Dean, and their families of Atkinson; and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Weyer of Plainview.

(A tape-recorded interview with Mr. and Mrs. Gray was heard on Monday's "Voice of The Frontier" program, WJAG, 780 kc.)
