O'Neill in Line for Armory
 LINCOLN—An armory dedication ceremony at Gering March 25 points to the progress being made in the Nebraska armory construction program.

There now are 11 armories, bases of operation for local National Guard units, completed in the state. They are at Columbus, Falls City, Fremont, Gering, Grand Island, Hastings, Holdrege, Kearney, Norfolk, North Platte and Scottsbluff.

Structures are planned at O'Neill, Lincoln, Sidney, Omaha, Alliance, seatrice, Chadron, Clete, Fairbury, Ogallala, Wahoo, Wayne and York.

In all, there will be 30 armories in the state, when the military department completes its construction program, supervised by the Nebraska armory board.

Funds come from the federal government and the military department's share of the state institutional building fund. The federal government pays 75 percent of the cost of a building, the state 25 percent. But the actual cost ratio is closer to 60 percent federal, 40 percent state. This is because the state has to landscape the area around the structure and furnish the building.

The Gering armory cost about $180,000, and, like all similar structures, adds much to community life. Armories are used for local social functions that do not interfere with military operations.

Nebraska has 3,800 guardsmen, including officers, who bring an annual payroll of $2,133,113 to the state.

Highway Commission—
 A progress report on the advisory state highway commission has been conducted 19 road relocation hearings since its creation by the 1953 legislature.

The hearings dealt with relocations established by the 1955 legislature, or the return to the highway system of highways taken off by that group of lawmakers.

The commission has approved 27 relocations contained in the 1955 legislation, 14 road abandonments and three locations on access routes to state highways.

It is part of the commission's job to submit to the governor's written advice on each proposal to relinquish or abandon any part of the state highway system. At least one commissioner must make a personal inspection of the route involved.

The commission chairman is Ray Ogier of North Platte. Members include C. R. Watson of Mitchell, Don Hanna, jr., of Brownlee, Arthur L. Coad of Omaha, C. E. Metzgar of Cedar Creek, J. R. McBride of Minden, and State Engineer L. N. Ress. Ress is an ex-officio member.

Titles Recovered—
 Extensive work by law officials recovered 400 blank certificates of title for motor vehicles, stolen from a vault in the statehouse.

The blanks were taken while a penitentiary work detail was engaged in moving supplies from the state motor vehicle department.

Penitentiary Warden Joseph Bovey said all but "three or four" of the certificates were accounted for.

"We believe only two or three individuals were involved," Bovey said. "Most of the boys on the work details have done an excellent job."

The blanks would be of no use unless they found their way into the hands of persons on the outside of prison who would forge a county clerk's name on them and use them for obtaining fraudulent loans or in selling stolen cars. Some of the blanks were bartered among the inmates for money, cigarettes and other items.

O'Neill in Line for Armory

When the purchaser discovered what he had and realized it was of no value to him he wondered what he was doing with it and destroyed it if he could," Bovey said.

New Garden Plan—
 The board of control has announced a new plan for intensifying gardening activities at the penal institutions.

This is designed to provide more food for the institutions it supervises and to keep more inmates busy, the board explained. The produce will be canned at a central canning plant to be constructed at the penitentiary.

The penitentiary previously had a canning plant but this was burned during the August riots of last year.

Under the new setup the board hopes to keep inmates busier for a longer time during the year by importing fruits and vegetables from the south for canning during the colder months. About 12,000 persons are fed at the institutions and the board said the new program should save the taxpayers a considerable amount of money.

Normal Board—
 The state normal board, which governs the four teachers colleges at Wayne, Chadron, Kearney and Peru, is scheduled to hold a regular meeting March 24.

At a gathering, plans for a new dormitory for women at Wayne may be considered. Bids also will be opened on wings for the men's dormitory at Wayne.

And also up for possible discussion, but probably no action, will be the vacancy at the Wayne filling in at the institution since college. An acting president is the death last month of President John Rice.

A large number of applications for the job have been received. Among those known interested in the job is F. B. Decker, state commissioner of education.
