Doesn't Mind Weather Flareups

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Some times during lent we serve lenten dishes that become such favorites of the family that we like to use them the year around. Every family should be served salmon once a week anyhow, and it's a big help to the budget where price is concerned, too.

The family will enjoy this salmon salad which is served in a different way.

CELERY CANOES OF SALMON

One-pound celery, two cups (one-pound can) salmon, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoon anchovy paste, 1/2 teaspoon salt, dash paprika, one tablespoon lemon juice, 1/4 cup mayonnaise.

Allow two short stalks celery per serving. Wash, dry and chill celery. Mash salmon with fork, blend in all ingredients, stuff celery stalks. Cut each stalk across into half-inch pieces and arrange the celery in its original shape, on lettuce. Serve with French dressing. Garnish with lemon sections and ripe olives.

SALMONBERGERS

Mix two cups (one-pound can) flaked salmon with 1/4 cup coarse cracker crumbs, one egg, slightly beaten. Saute one small sliced onion in one tablespoon butter, add to salmon mixture, season.

Shape six thin salmon cakes and brown quickly in one tablespoon butter. Split large luns and place hot salmon cakes between. Serve with dill pickles. Serves six.

Ewing Homemaker Wins Subscription—

Dear Mrs. Pease:

This is being written on a truly typical March day. The wind has blown all day from the north, and at times the air was full of snowflakes, then it would clear off and the sun would almost shine through. The temperature has dropped and even the birds are frozen. Two robins which we've seen the last few days have found shelter in the lilac hedge, but the buds on the elm tree can't quite understand what it's all about, but we really don't mind these flare-ups in the weather as it's what we expect from March.

So while we were watching the snowflakes go by the window this afternoon, we were thinking about the garden that we hope to have this summer. It's a good time to plan. The seed catalogs have been delivered. We like the home grown vegetables and the menticks are interested in trying some vetch for the first time. There is nothing around the home that gives me a thrill like working in the garden, and the big day comes when we exhibit the long shelves full of vegetables and fruits that we have canned through the summer. In these modern days the deep freezes in the homes not only save vegetables but save time, too.

The winter has gone fast with not too much to show for it. The days have been short but a dress and a coat were made, a set of dish towels was hemmed, and we hope to get them embroidered before the yard and garden work starts. Two recesses were had to entertain the flu bug. But on the whole, we have had a nice winter and have enjoyed nice balmy days.

We still eat at our house, too. We made a nice batch of cookies from some remnants of honey and peanut butter. You mothers who have to keep something just a little extra for the school lunch box might like to try these:

HONEY PEANUT COOKIES

One-half cup shortening, 1/2 cup honey, 1/2 cup brown sugar, one egg (well beaten), 1/2 cup peanut butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, two cups all purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon soda. Cream shortening, honey and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add well beaten egg. Add peanut butter and salt. Stir in flour and soda sifted together and mix well.

Form into small balls of dough. Place upon greased cookie sheet. Press with a fork. Bake in moderate oven eight to 10 minutes. Yield: Four dozen cookies.

And how many of you make cornbread at your house? We add cornbread for supper and it did not go badly with butter. Next time you have sauer kraut and spare ribs, stir up some cornbread and watch it disappear.

CORNBREAD

Three-fourths cup cornmeal, one cup flour, four teaspoons baking powder, 3/4 teaspoon salt, four tablespoons sugar, one egg (well beaten), one cup milk, three tablespoons shortening (melted). Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine well beaten eggs and milk, add to dry ingredients, stir in the shortening. Bake in greased muffin pans in a moderate oven.

It's nearly mail time, so will have to hurry and get this mailed while I am in the notion. It's nearly meal time again.

Always enjoy your corner. A HOMEMAKER

Remember that chinook or king salmon is marvelous for salads and ranges from white to red in color. It is rich in oil and large flaked, and is usually higher priced. It usually comes in flat cans.

Red or sockeye salmon is fine for hot dishes and for salads and is usually deep red in color. It breaks into small flakes, is firm in texture, has considerable oil. It is usually labeled red, Alaska red, sockeye or sometimes blue-back.

Medium red or coho salmon is good in most dishes, cooked, or as it comes from the can. It is large flaked and red, but lighter red than sockeye.

Pink is the most popular kind and is usually cheaper. It makes good wholesome dishes, soups and sandwiches.

Chum or keta salmon is usually reasonably priced, lighter in color and less oily.

It Happened In NEBRASKA

Hostile Indians were a constant threat to the young, adventurous Pony Express riders operating almost 100 years ago. Well-known though it is to us today, the Pony Express operated for only 18 months! This short-lived business was a project of a famous Nebraska City freighting firm.

Another part of the Old West long disappeared is the colorful "bar room." Today's modern, quiet, well-regulated taverns are a respected part of community living. They are retail businesses like any other.
