She went to the movie... and couldn't get out!
The movie at the Bijou wasn't at all what she'd expected. There was too little excitement, far too much talk. So, bored and just a bit tired, 9-year-old Mary Ann Miller curled up in the big soft seat... and dropped off to sleep.
When she awoke everyone had gone; the theater was empty. She was alone in the fearsomely quiet dark! Frightened, she ran up the aisle, but the entrance door, the side exits too, were locked.
Mary Ann pushed open a door, found a light switch. There was a telephone on the desk. The rest was easy. Minutes later police arrived to force open a door. A relieved and smiling little girl walked out. "After I called Mommy I wasn't scared any more," she said. "I knew I wasn't really alone—cause the telephone was there."
The story above is true. Only the names have been changed. What happened here may never happen to anyone in your family. But in any emergency, it's good to remember—like little Mary Ann Miller—you're never really alone when a telephone is near.
To provide dependable telephone service to families like the Millers—and to you—your telephone company must be financially healthy. For we must continue to pay and train skilled workers, buy, build and maintain good equipment... to continue to make your telephone worth more than it costs.
