Cattlemen's Landmark Is 75-Years-Old

In a ceremony commemorating the 75th anniversary of the old stone gate at the Chicago stock yards, William Wood Prince, president of the Union Stock Yard and Transit company, watches a herd of cattle being driven through the gate. The anniversary of this Chicago landmark, familiar to farmers and cattlemen everywhere, was observed by driving a herd of cattle through the gate—just as was done in the early days of the Chicago stock yards. The animals arrived by rail 75 years ago, and were driven out of the yard through the old stone gate to the nearby packing plants except for a different roof, the structure remains today just as it was in 1879.
