

Try 'Trick or Treat' in Reverse

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE, Homemaking Editor

October is the month when cold weather sets in and the family's thoughts turn to food that is a bit more hearty than in warmer months. The homemaker is busy, but there are things she can serve that are quick, easy and satisfying. Why not try some nut waffles some Sunday night for a special supper? This recipe makes four.

NUT WAFFLES

Start the waffle iron heating. Sift into a bowl, one cup enriched flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar. Beat until foamy. Two egg yolks. Add: 3/4 cup milk, three tablespoons melted fat or drippings. Pour liquid ingredients into dry ingredients and beat with rotary egg beater until smooth. Beat until stiff, two egg whites. Fold into waffle batter with 1/2 cup walnuts or pecans (coarsely chopped). Bake in preheated waffle iron until golden brown. Serve immediately with hot syrup or honey.

Hard pears are still available on the market and broiling fruit of any kind is easy. Halve or slice unpeeled pears and apples and remove the seeds. Brush with bacon fat, spread with brown sugar, honey or syrup. Place on cookie sheet or pyrex platter and broil for 10 minutes or until tender.

CHOCOLATE DESSERT WAFFLES

You'll need four tablespoons butter, 1 1/4 cups milk, four tablespoons chocolate syrup (the canned kind you use for ice cream), four tablespoons sugar, two eggs, two cups pastry flour, three teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cream the butter and sugar together, sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat the yolks of the eggs well and mix with the milk and chocolate syrup. Combine all the ingredients and beat well, then fold in the stiffly whipped white of the eggs. If baked on a well-heated electric waffle mold, no greasing will be required. If on an ordinary waffle iron, use but two tablespoons butter in the batter and grease the waffle iron lightly. These waffles are delicious served hot from the mold with vanilla ice cream.

'Tricks or Treats' Reversed

Dear Frontier Woman: Well, here goes a try. I would surely enjoy a three-months' subscription to The Frontier. Halloween is going to be here before long. The youngsters around your community been used to "tricks or treats"? Why not try another version, by giving each of your own youngsters a bag of treats to go treating with? Treats could be doughnuts or popcorn. Let the children dress up in their costumes and go visit a shut-in or some older person. This is a good season to introduce the "giving spirit" before Christmas. It's a lot of fun for the folks, little and big. Might dress up the evening meal with individual salads of orange gelatin or cup cakes with orange frosting and faces put on them with raisins and cloves. Will enclose of good doughnut recipe.

SPICY APPLE DOUGHNUTS

Two tablespoons butter, one cup brown sugar, one cup apple sauce, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, four to five cups flour, 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, two teaspoons baking powder. Cream the butter and sugars, then add the eggs. Mix apple sauce and soda together, then add them to first mixture alternately with the dry ingredients which were all put into sifter. Roll on floured board and cut. Fry as usual in deep hot fat. Makes three dozen.

'AN OLD-TIME HALLOWE'ENER'

The writer of this letter would probably be interested in knowing that her idea has been used at Polk. At Halloween time, some of the 4-H girls there don't go out and howl, "Trick or treat." They knock instead at the homes of the old, the ill, the shut-in and such with gifts. Usually something to eat. They usually call at the old people's home, too. At May basket time, they hang May baskets for the shut-ins and such, and the old and the ill enjoy it so much.

ice, has missed an appearance since the hectic grind began, whether it is 6 o'clock in the morning or 9 o'clock at night.

Wearing a black felt cha-peak, which has been a hall mark since the primary, Mrs. Abel congratulated north-central Nebraska republicans for their "stalwart entrenchment in the philosophy the individual comes first and that private enterprise on the farm, in the cities and towns, is the keystone of our country."

Victor E. Anderson, Lincoln businessman and GOP candidate for governor, was the busiest caravaner, entering scores of business houses alone, lumbering up and down the streets laden with huge placards and beaming a generous Scandinavian smile.

"The office of governor of Nebraska demands a man with practical business background, since he is the manager and administrator of the state's budget, which amounted to 97 million dollars for the past fiscal year. Certainly a man who has had experience in meeting his own payroll and cutting expenses in his own business can render greater service to his state through economy measures."

"I am hopeful that my 30 years of experience in business and my record as a state legislator and mayor of the city of Lincoln will enable me to do a better job than one who has not had such experience."

The O'Neill reception was arranged by Mrs. Guy Cole of O'Neill, chairman of the Holt county republican committee.

The caravaners were greeted by several hundred Rock countyans at 2 o'clock Friday morning in Bassett, also by the town's band. Stops were made at Stuart and Atkinson before the noon arrival here. Late afternoon stops were to be made at Bartlett and Greeley. Right down the line they said the caravan idea is a grind, but they would not exchange the opportunity for anything in the world.

Charles J. Warner, veteran lieutenant-governor, didn't once doff his wide-brimmed brown hat. He wore it throughout the luncheon at the M&M restaurant.

Others were to put away their togas this week with uncounted caravan miles behind them. Not Mr. Warner. He is obligated to wear the distinctive brown one until all the GOP votes are counted in November. However, his compatriots are considerate on one thing. They permit him to remove the hat while he sleeps.
