

Loss Heavy in Atkinson Blaze

Gloor's Bakery Is Badly Gutted

(Photo at right) ATKINSON—An early morning fire last Thursday virtually destroyed Gloor's bakery. An estimate of the loss has been fixed at well over six-thousand-dollars.

Otto Gloor and his son-in-law, George Embody, bakery operator, this week have been busy cleaning up the costly mess and readying the establishment for reopening.

The fire was discovered about 5:15 a.m., by Russell Heuton. The 25x100-foot cement block building withstood the flames but the interior was badly gutted. Front and interior of the building were extensively damaged by the fire, which was of unknown origin.

Stuart firemen assisted Atkinson firemen in bringing the blaze under control. O'Neill firemen were alerted but their services were not required.

Mr. Embody and his wife had worked at the bakery until about 8:30 the night before. Mr. Gloor, who is Atkinson's night police officer, said he had smelled smoke earlier in the night but did not detect the fire. It is believed the blaze had been eating its way through the building for several hours when it was discovered.

Mr. Embody says much of the heavy equipment can be rehabilitated but all of the fixtures, most of the stock and supplies were destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wells and son, Dennis, and Mr. and Mrs. Rubin Redlinger of Page spent Sunday in Sioux City.

Guard Membership Exempts Draft

Under the provisions of the present selective service laws, young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ years can, by joining the national guard, satisfy their military obligation at home. The laws, as they now read, state that any young man who enlists in the national guard prior to reaching his 18½ birthday will be exempt from selective service as long as he participates regularly and satisfactorily in the scheduled drills.

The national guard unit in Norfolk, commanded by Capt. George Talmadge, holds its meetings each Monday evening starting at 7:30 o'clock in the Norfolk city auditorium. Young men and parents of young men who are within the 17 to 18½-year-old bracket are invited to attend any of these meetings. Any information of questions will gladly be answered and a full explanation of what each young man's reserve obligation consists of will be given to anyone interested, Captain Talmadge says.

Membership in the national guard is strictly on a voluntary basis. Pay is received by the men for the drills they attend. It is possible to train at home with pay and still satisfy the military obligations.
