Letter to Editor

Inman, Nebr.

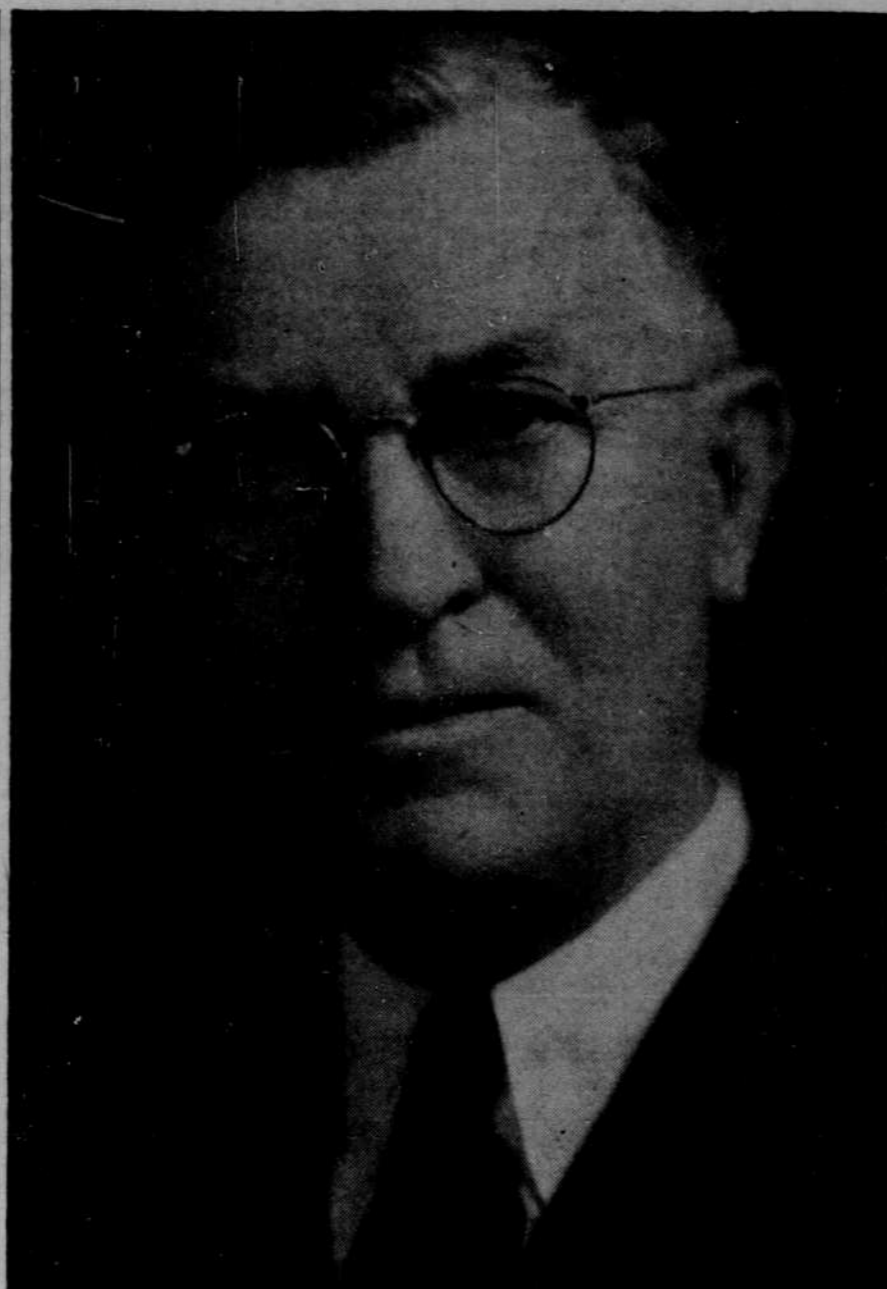

Editor:

I hope to tell you something of the correct conformation or build of the horse.

Standing at a little distance to one side of the animal you should see a high, strong back, as contrasted to a low or sway back.

The body should show a short top line and a long underline. The shoulder in ponies or saddle horses should slope back with the front legs set well forward. The work horse should have a more upright shoulder with more bearing for the collar. The hips should be of good length and not too steep and both hip and shoulder should show a good covering of muscle.

Never buy a horse whose front legs are wide apart. He will be rough-gaited and slow moving. Neither should the legs be extremely close together. Standing at ease the front leg should be perpendicular from the shoulder to ankle with the pastern from ankle to hoof sloping at an angle of 45 degrees. The knee should be set rather low on the leg. The horse with the canon or section from knee to ankle as long as the forearm or section from knee to shoulder, will be a poor mover. A straight-edge placed against the back of the hind leg from hock to ankle should just touch the point of the hip. If the hock is set either

John V. Dwyer, 75, Former Teacher, Dies

Endured Hardship to Get Education

John V. Dwyer, 75, former Montana district judge and state legislator and retired member of the legal department of the Anacosta Copper Mining company, died at 10:30 o'clock Thursday night, April 30, in St. James hospital at Butte, Mont.

Judge Dwyer, who was a former O'Neill resident, was hospitalized April 18 after suffering a stroke at his home. Members of his family were at his bedside.

The late John Vincent Dwyer was born August 18, 1877, in Atlantic, a small community near Iron Mountain, Mich. He was the son of Timothy F. Dwyer and Mary A. Dwyer. When he was a few years old, the Dwyer family moved to O'Neill where John Dwyer attended the public schools, getting as far as the sixth grade. In 1893, when he was 16-years-old, he went to Butte to work in the mines.

Determined to get an education, young Dwyer attended the Butte business college at night after spending the day underground and in this manner finished his grade school and high school education.

At times he studied well through the night before leaving his books and was on the job again in the morning at the mines with only a few hours sleep.

After saving enough money by work in the mines to pay for a college and legal education, he left for Creighton university, Omaha, where he continued his studies.

On three different sessions at the college he completed two years' work in one. In this manner he secured his bachelor of arts degree and also his legal education.

He returned to Butte and for a time taught English in Butte high school. In the meantime, he continued his legal studies and on December 3, 1907, was admitted to the state bar. It was not long thereafter before he began to take a definite interest in local and public affairs and political activities. In 1915 he was a member of the state legislature from Silver Bow county and from 1917 to 1919 he served as district judge. He resigned as district judge to enter the private practice of law. After a period of private practice, he accepted a position with the legal department of the Anacosta Copper Mining company. He remained with the department until January 1, 1950, when he retired.

For a time he was superintendent of the O'Neill public schools.

On July 6, 1908, he married Grace Mary Gordon of Providence, R.I. She died on March 12, 1951.

Survivors include: Sons—Robert of Butte, Mont.; sister—Mrs. Charles E. Stout of O'Neill, the only surviving member of the Dwyer family who left Michigan for the West; daughters—Mrs. Mary Ruckward of Anacosta, Mont., Mrs. Ross Lyle of Nixon, Nev., Mrs. Katherine Day and Mrs. Betty Taborski, both of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Ruth Cusick of Pullman, Wash., and Mrs. Francis Lyons of Butte, Mont.; 18 grandsons and granddaughters.
