The Frontier Woman

Like Scent of Freshened Linens

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

When it's mid-August, it's time to think about school starting again. But you don't have to wait until September to serve sandwiches. August is sandwich month, too.

Make ribbon sandwiches as a surprise for the family on a warm August evening. Buy an unsliced loaf of bread and slice horizontally in three or four slices. Put different spreads between the slices and wrap the whole in waxed paper and store in the refrigerator until just ready to serve. Then slice as you would ordinarily slice the loaf of bread.

When you've made an attractive sandwich, serve it attractively. Eye appeal is a good share of appetite appeal. A frill of lettuce, crisp carrot curls, pickle fans, radish roses, rosy red crab apples, cubes of cheese and fresh fruit aid in your imaginative touches on the sandwich plate. Perk it up to tempt lagging appetites.

Here is one that is good if the whole family likes pineapple: Two cups of grated carrots, one cup crushed pineapple, one cup nuts, two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon vinegar. Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin in two cups of hot water, then when cooled add the first ingredients and chill. It can be used plain or served on lettuce leaves. A nice big bowl of homemade cottage cheese doesn't go badly for supper, and that can be prepared the day before, too.

The climbing roses are just through blooming, and we will miss them as they were beautiful. They hung in huge clusters. They are being sprayed and we will wait patiently for the next buds to appear. The iris were beautiful, too, and we made daily trips to see what colors were opening up. We don't have any special plants, and no big names for them. We have a sort of a "give me" flower garden. One of those where kind friends have divided with me, until we have a sight to behold when they all get to blooming. We had some peonies and hybrid iris given us last fall, but they did not bloom, so we will have to wait until next spring to see what they will do.

We like the iris as they are one of the first flowers that come on in the spring, and we usually can depend on them for decoration day, but they were not out this year.

It's the time of year to move

Vary your sandwich meals often so they will keep their table appeal all summer long. Experiment with new fillings—creations that can be your speciality.

The bread can be changed as often as the filling. Doubtless you can depend on the baker to supply many varieties of breads. For a change, bake a quick loaf bread. Add fruit, both dried and candied, nuts and peanut butter to vary the kinds of bread. You'll find the family likes these breads spread with butter, margarine or cream cheese.

Ewing Homemaker Wins Subscription

Ewing, Nebr.

Dear Mrs. Pease: Old mother nature is really pouring out the heat this afternoon, and it's too hot to work in the garden. So I will try to get you a few more lines written, as I've been planning on doing just that for a long time. It's so easy to put off writing, although we like to read the letters in The Frontier.

This was wash day at our house, and we got up early and got the washing all out before it got hot. We have it all in now, but the heavy overalls. The bed is made with fresh sheets just off the line. We don't often do that as good housekeepers don't approve of it, but we like the scent from the freshened linens.

These are busy days for the farm homemakers as haying is underway, the grains are being harvested by combining or the binder. The garden is beginning to provide vegetables for the table. The surplus of beans and peas have been canned or frozen, and we wait patiently for the first ripe tomatoes. We planted some more beets, turnips and radishes, and the last rain was just what they needed. We are having quite a time with the cucumber vines, as small striped bugs seem to enjoy destroying the new plants. We hope to get a few strawberries from the fall crop, as they are blooming and a small dish was brought in last night. They are nice size, but we have to divide with the rotnins.

These hot days tempt the farm wife to use her icebox just a little more and with meals to prepare for the busy and hungry harvesters, chickens are prepared days ahead and frozen, and a nice cool salad can be tucked away in the icebox, too.

These lines are getting lengthy, and you may not be able to find room for so much chatter, so will go back to the clothes and get them sprinkled, so they can be frozen the first thing in the morning. The birds are happy and we even heard a mourning dove. The thunderheads are lazily floating by, and we hope it all develops into a nice shower, as we could use one very nicely.
