Leftovers Fit into Many Dishes

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

If it's good food, don't throw it away. Leftovers, little or big ones, fit into many dishes. Egg yolks can often be used in place of whole eggs. If bread is dry, use it for French toast. Other leftovers can add good value in various ways.

If it's leftover vegetables such as snap beans, lima beans, corn, peas or carrots use them in meat and vegetable pie, soup, stew, stuffed peppers, stuffed tomatoes or in vegetable dishes with cheese sauce.

Leftover cooked leafy vegetables may be used chopped in creamed vegetables, soup, meat loaf, meat patties, omelet, or soufflé. Cooked or canned fruits that are left over may often be used in fruit cup, fruit sauces, jellied fruit, quick breads and short cakes, upside down cake or yeast breads.

You can use cooked leftover wheat cereal, oat or corn cereals in fried cereal, meat loaf or patties or in sweet puddings.

Everybody knows cooked leftover rice, noodles, macaroni, or spaghetti are just the thing for casseroles, meat and cheese loaf, or for timbales.

Slightly dry bread slices are fine for French toast and dry crumbs can be used in brown Betty, croquettes or fried chops. Soft crumbs can be used in meat loaf and stuffings.

Leftover cake and cookies work fine for brown Betty, ice box cake or with pudding mixes made up as a topping.

You can use sour cream in cakes, cookies, dessert sauce, meat stews, pie fillings, salad dressing, and as a sauce for vegetables.

Leftover cooked meats may often be used in casserole dishes, hash, meat patties, meat pies, salads, sandwiches and stuffed vegetables. The same thing may be said for leftover poultry or fish.

Use cooked potatoes in croquettes, fried or creamed, meat pie crust, potatoes in cheese sauce and in stew or chowder. Most of us have many sour milk recipes. You can use hard cooked egg or yolk in casserole dishes, garnishes, salads and in sandwiches. Egg whites work fine in custards, fruit whip, meringues and soufflés. And you can use up the egg yolks in cakes, cornstarch pudding, custards, pie fillings, salad dressings and scrambled eggs.

Just don't waste anything! — tfw —

Glad Hobby Becomes Enterprise

Mrs. W. B. Lamb, box 415, O'Neill, wins our three-months subscription this week.

Dear Editor: I see by The Frontier that you want more letters for The Frontier Woman. I'm no writer but I wonder if you would like to hear about my hobby? I'll be glad to give it as best I can.

Some eight or nine years ago I sent a cereal box top with a coin for 15 Margaret Fulton glass bulbs. I was thrilled to get them planted and they soon appeared. Every glad peeped through the ground. They grew fast and well really, even the foliage was lovely. Then the buds began to appear and soon I had 15 lovely glads in full bloom.

The hot weather seemed to be hard on them. My husband said, "Yes, they are pretty, but I wouldn't spend my time on a flower that didn't last."

But the next year, I got some again and then we learned to cut them when the first or second bloom was out and stand them in water to finish blooming.

Then we really got interested and sent for different colors until we have almost 8,000 spikes.

Our glad garden has become a wonderful hobby to both of us. We surely enjoy them ourselves and trust we have made many people enjoy them, too. If I had our hobby turned out to be a real glad garden.

MRS. W. B. LAMB
Mrs. Lamb, it was real interesting to read about how a hobby grew into an enterprise. Lots of them start that way.

We dug our glads not too long ago, or I should say, my son did, and we were so pleased to see what fine large bulbs we got. Much larger than those we planted. We should have some really good ones if nothing happens to prevent next year.

Zip Up the Cranberry Sauce

Make cranberry sauce the usual way. Then for variations try these ideas:

1. Fold in three bananas cut in half inch slices for cranberry-chiquita.
2. Spoon sauce over cooked or canned pear halves for cranberry-

Mrs. Smith Resigns as Club President

CHAMBERS—Beautiful Valley Garden club met recently at the home of Mrs. Hattie Tibbets. Roll call was "What I Want for Thanksgiving."

During the business session the resignation of Mrs. Lorine Smith, who had been elected as 1934 president, was accepted. Mrs. Mildred Hoffman was unanimously elected to hold this office the coming year.

The lesson consisted of a discussion of fall garden work. Mrs. Gertrude Walter showed and demonstrated the making of several attractive home decorations.

Plans were made for the Christmas meeting and potluck supper to be held at the home of Mrs. Bernice Platt, starting at 7 p.m., December 8. Gifts will be exchanged.

At the close, the hostess, Mrs. Tibbets, served a lunch.

Entertains Club—Winnie Barger entertained her bridge club Tuesday evening at her home. The bridge was preceded with a dinner at the M&M cafe.
