It Happened In NEBRASKA...

Once, no bridge to cross the Missouri at Omaha! In those days, trains at Council Bluffs, Ia., waited patiently for the Omaha ferry to bring over east-bound passengers. Shown above is Council Bluffs, seen from the Nebraska side. The first "wagon and railway" bridge was built here in '88.
Since then we have crossed many bridges, including improved taven operation. Today, Nebraska taverns speak for themselves—in clean, wholesome, law-abiding conduct.
