Ak-Sar-Ben Offers Money to Fairs

Another substantial financial contribution to the support of Nebraska county fairs was announced Wednesday by Ak-Sar-Ben, whose president, W. D. Lane, stated the organization had voted to make up to $50,000 available in the next year for permanent improvements throughout the state.

Ak-Sar-Ben, Mr. Lane said, will donate up to $500 toward a permanent improvement at any county fair which is willing to match the organization's donation with a like sum.

"We realize that a $1,000 project may not sound big to the larger and better financed fairs, but our survey reveals that it will be a great assistance to the smaller fairs which really need help," Mr. Lane stated. "Many of them are sadly in need of exhibit buildings and other facilities."

The program will be financed from Ak-Sar-Ben's annual racing meet and will be carried on under the organization's public affairs committee of which J. L. Thurmond is chairman.

Thurmond pointed out that matching contributions at the local fair levels can be obtained either through appropriations by county boards or through contributions by individuals and business groups in the various communities. "In fact, the fair associations can go even farther and add to their projects labor and materials, if they are available," Thurmond said.

The newly announced program is in addition to Ak-Sar-Ben's established appropriations of $23,000 a year toward 4-H and FFA premiums in the county fairs, and approximately $50,000 more distributed by the state racing commission each year from taxes and fees collected at the Ak-Sar-Ben and other race meets staged in Nebraska.

Ak-Sar-Ben officials stated that the new grants will not be

Cattle Unevenly Steady at Omaha

Omaha Monday had over 53,000 head of livestock to easily lead the field, and make it 16 consecutive weeks that Omaha has opened as top-ranking market.

Cattle and calves totalled some 28,000, and included were 16,000 slaughter steers, heifers and yearlings. Trade on that class was slow — unevenly steady to 50c lower, instances off more, and clearance incomplete. Numerous steers and yearlings ranged from $20 to $25.50, with better steers $26-$27.50, one load 1,274-pounders $28, none in the run comparable to last week's 1,356-pounders at $28.95. Best heifers Monday were some at $24.50, as against $25.25 last week. Plain killers Monday sold at $18 down.

Cows sold steady to 50c off, $8-$12.50, odd head $13.

Meanwhile, the lower trend on slaughter cattle didn't faze trade on replacement stock. Stocker and feeder cattle and calves, totalling 7,500, sold steady to 50c higher, yearling stock steers $15-$20.50, feeder steers to $20, stock heifers to $17.10, steer calves to $24, and heifer calves to $17.75.

Butcher hogs, Friday to $24, best since early October. Monday lot 50c-$1, bracketing 180-270-pounders at $22.50 - $23.25. Sows weighing 270-550 sold at $19-$21.25.

Fat lambs were mostly steady to 50c off, woolled $17-$20, shorn to $19. Slaughter ewes, steady to 25c off, brought $5-$6.75. Feeder lambs sold week, better westerns to $18.75; 85 to 90 pound shearing lambs $18.25, one load $18.40. Short term breeding ewes went out at $8.50-$9.
