Down Memory Lane

Many longtime readers of The Frontier will recognize this as L. C. Peters, who for many years was a reporter on this newspaper and earned recognition as an able, colorful and sometimes imaginative writer. He is pictured at a desk in The Frontier building which later was destroyed by fire. Mr. Peters' writings often were reprinted by other newspapers and periodicals throughout the country. He was employed by the late D. H. Cronin, who then was editor and publisher. For a time Mr. Peters sold road culverts and bridge supplies. The present Frontier building was built in 1928.—Photo through courtesy of H. D. Grady.

How About . . .

- That "Extra" Room
- New Floors
- A New Garage
- A Recreation Room
- Storm Sash
- A Ping Pong Table

AS A USUAL THING—People don't associate a lumber yard with Christmas buying.

BECAUSE—You can't put a pile of lumber under a Christmas tree and no one wants a bundle of shingles, a window or a door stuffed in their stocking.

BUT . . . There are many items we sell that do make splendid Christmas gifts for the whole family.
