

Thrifty Time to Buy White Goods

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Well, I declare to man, heaven and earth, molasses and pumpkin juice, if it isn't the middle of January already—and you with not a bit of your Christmas shopping done for Christmas, 1954! It's time to start thinking about getting all those things done that you promised yourself you'd do this winter . . . for before you know it, March 21 will be here and the first day of spring.

Now is the time to take stock and review the white sales. For this is the thrifty time to buy sheets, pillow cases, towels and table linens and such.

Let's talk about sheets, for instance. Now, it's the heaviest sheet with the most threads per inch that wears the longest and, of course, costs the most. But consider—does your family like the feel of the heaviest sheets? Another thing to consider—do you send sheets to the laundry and pay for them by the pound? Do you have little drying space?

In these cases you may want a bit lighter sheet. In our family, we don't particularly like the heavier sheets, so I buy the medium grade. They dry a bit quicker on the line and we like the feel of them better.

Consider the fitted sheets and fitted top sheets this year before buying. They will save you a lot of work in bed making and they are very comfortable. They do take longer to dry and are more awkward to fold. My personal feeling is that their time saving elements in bed making over-balance their longer drying period.

Be sure you buy sheets long enough for your bed, with a comfortable fold under (I am not speaking of fitted sheets now) and a top sheet that folds over other bedding comfortably. These cost more but are certainly worth it in the long run.

Consider, too, the lovely colored sheets which now come in percale and muslin and in the pastel colors that delight the eye. Pillowcases may be purchased to match. They're really so attractive, you'll love them. Also, one may buy sheets with colored or printed hems, and they make smart gifts. Consider, too, at white sale time, buying items for wedding and shower gifts that will be coming up during the year—gifts bought at a saving. And it is not too early to start thinking about next Christmas.

Mrs. Osborn Wins Subscription—Dorsey, Nebr.

Dear Mrs. Pease:

Have been going to write to you ever since we were at Atkinson for hay days. I find the old proverb, "Time and tide wait for no man," very true.

By now mothers are very tired of this school lunch business. I am so glad I do not have to do that any more as we live close to the schoolhouse so my youngsters can come home for dinner.

It isn't like when I went to school, though, for now with electricity they have a hot lunch of soup and toasted sandwiches or hot fried eggs, hamburger or wieners. There is such a variety of canned soups in small cans, if mother doesn't care to make it up, that children can usually have a variety all the time.

With a month or two of this variety of foods, one doesn't get so tired of sandwiches as I used to. I must add here that mother certainly used to fix a nice lunch for me and I cannot remember being as tired of it as the children seem to get now.

She would fix cookies, cakes, and alternate them. For sandwiches we would have fried chicken and later on it would be roast chicken. Then we'd have friend pork, boiled ham and, at Christmas time after a beef was butchered, beef sandwiches. Then we'd have boiled chicken (ground), and a variety of pickles as well as breads. Or perhaps buns that mother had baked.

I am enclosing a ginger snap cookie recipe that I have enjoyed ever since I was a child. It makes a large batch, so maybe some of you won't want to make so many. We used to have these in our school lunches.
