Senators Introduce 111 New Laws During First Week; More to Come

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN

— Bills continue to pour into the Nebraska Legislature, now in its second week. Individual senators will have through Jan. 30 to introduce bills, then only standing committees or the governor may do so. The first week of activity produced 111 proposed new laws, many of them eliminating obsolete sections of statutes or harmonizing them with others.

Early indications are there will be much debate over proposals introduced to allow other elected officials to run for governor, having the governor and lieutenant governor cannot seek the governorship without waiting for two years after his term expires. Even the lieutenant governor cannot file for the governorship without abiding by the same provision of the Constitution that requires the waiting period.

Veteran observers noted that the first few days of the bill introduction period produced fewer bills than normal. Many senators feel there will be less legislation proposed this session. Others think the total bills will hit the 800 mark. Now it is too early to guess at the final total.

Governor Morrison
Frank Brenner Morrison, a 55-year-old Lincoln attorney and Democrat, is Nebraska's 31st governor. He is the eighth Democrat to hold the office.

What type of person is he? Morrison is six feet, three inches tall and weighs 225 pounds. He has a firm handshake, graying hair, good speaking voice and likes to meet people. He was born at Golden, Colorado, May 29, 1905, was graduated from the University of Nebraska law college in 1931 and began practicing in Maywood in Frontier county in 1932. His middle name is the family name of his mother.

The Morrisesons have two sons, Frank Jr., and Jon, and one daughter, Jean.

Both Morrison and his wife, Maxine, were Republicans at one time but changed parties in the 30s. Morrison has been dabbling in politics for about 20 years, won many primaries for various offices but never got real close to a general election victory.

The new governor plunged into duties of his office with vigor after his inauguration at which he asked Nebraskans to join him in efforts to "make Nebraska grow." He says he will emphasize consolidation of functions in his administration, attraction of industry and explore how to improve the tourist business.

Among his specific proposals were those calling for executive authority for the highway commission which now is advisory, and changing responsibility for collection of fuel, cigarette and oil taxes from the agriculture department to the tax commissioner's office.

Attorney General
Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer has named Jerry Vitavvas as his deputy and appointed Mel Kammerhoffer of Hastings as an assistant attorney general to replace Vitavvas. Former attorney general C. S. Beck was elected to a district judgeship in his home town of North Platte. Vitavvas had been an assistant attorney general for several years after serving as assistant clerk in the State Supreme Court.

Budget Approach
The budget committee of the Legislature is taking an unusual approach to state spending this session. It this week began a series of "pre-budget" hearings which its chairman, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, described as "fact-finding" hearings. These will be designed to find out each department functions and as much as possible before public airings of the agencies' requests for tax funds are held.

Public Welfare
Public Welfare will get considerable attention this session of the Legislature. Sen. Sam Klaver of Omaha says he will call for a legislative investigation of the program, at the state and local levels.

The Legislature also will undoubtedly face the problem of what to do about the federal program for giving medical aid to the aged. The advisory committee to the State Board of Public Welfare has suggested a "minimum program" with the state's share of that program to cost about $4.1 million.

There also are two other approaches, one costing $6.4 million, and the maximum of $13.6 million.

State Public Welfare Director Frank Woods says Nebraska has about 155,000 persons 65 years old or more, of which about 20 per cent need medical financial aid.
