Mr. and Mrs. Bert Finley have purchased the Shelhamer store in Page and took possession Monday. Arlie Eickler, who has been the manager of the store for several months, will continue working there.

Mr. and Mrs. Larbee Kelly spent from Thursday until Sunday, May 4 to 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Burtwhistle at Pilger. Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Duncan, of Rapid City, S. D., had been staying at the Burtwhistle home since Mrs. Burtwhistle's return from the hospital. Mrs. Elsie Best came by plane from Bell, Calif. Mrs. Best, Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Kelly are all sisters of Mrs. Burtwhistle and they met there so they could all be together once more.

The American Legion Auxiliary sponsored a poppy day tea at the Legion hall Saturday, May 6, from 2 to 5 p. m. Contribution for the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary poppy go to aid disabled men of World Wars I and II.

The May basket supper at the Methodist church parlors drew a good crowd Monday evening, May 8. The tables were decorated with the colorful baskets in which the food was served. Proceeds of the supper were $100.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Mutschulat and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Asher attended the wedding of Miss Esther Aughe and James Fitzhammer at the Methodist church at Neligh Sunday afternoon, May 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Heiss, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heiss and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Heiss, of Page, and Darrell Heiss, of Lincoln, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Johnston at Stromsburg Sunday, May 7, to observe the 26th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Heiss.

They arrived at Stromsburg early enough to attend church. Mr. and Mrs. Heiss are the parents of Mrs. Johnston, Kenneth and Darrell.

Mrs. Arlie Eickler returned to her home after spending over a week at Orchard because of the illness of her mother, Mrs. Emma Coover.

Norman Bobbit, of Jerome, Ida., came to Page Monday, May 9, to take his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Cullen, to Omaha where another brother, Earl Bobbit, lives. From there they all went to Verdon to the home of their sister, Mrs. Ernest Brown, and where another sister, Miss Maude Bobbit, lives. It was for a reunion of the 3 sisters and 2 brothers.

E. A. Walker, who left here last week to visit his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Craig, and family at Norfolk, has gone on to Denver, Colo., to visit another daughter and family, Mr. and James McNally.

'Montana Jack' Says Dempsey the Greatest

By DAVIS WALSH

Another voice from the garish, lamp-lit vistas of the deep past comes hollowly and ghost-like across the years today to challenge other listings for the prize ring's Gallery of Greatness, and politely offer its own.

The demurrer is filed by "Montana Jack" Sullivan, who just missed greatness himself in a day when the brown derby was de rigueur, the exposed suspender a badge of manhood and men were so tough (presumably) they brushed their teeth with a nail file. Apparently, in fact, we're all agreed on that point—with the possible exception of Montana Jack.

He doesn't pick his No. 1 man of the half-century from those hallowed names of his own generation. Instead, he violates every precept and tenet of the Old Settlers' code by selecting a semi-modern as his nominee.

He names the Jack Dempsey of Toledo as the prize fighters' prize fighter of the last 50 years, saying:

"The most devastating fighter, and the greatest I ever saw at any weight, was the Jack Dempsey who fought Willard that day..."

Whereat, old Montana Jack, now 72, forwards from Butte his own Gay Nineties version of boxing's top 10 in their order of merit, as it appealed to his judgment after watching them in action, fighting them in the ring or boxing with them in training camps. Thus:

1, Dempsey; 2, Kid McCoy (Norman Selby); 3, Stanley Ketchel; 4, Paddy McFarland; 5, Joe Gans; 6, James J. Jeffries; 7, Sam Langford; 8, Battling Nelson; 9, Abe Attell; 10, Joe Louis.

The list, he said, didn't represent a controversial "counter" for another set of selections which appeared here recently under the aegis of Ike Bernstein, whom Montana Jack calls "a real authority."

At the same time (said he) he reserved the right to feel as he did, especially after fighting some of them. Ketchel, for instance, with whom he went 20 rounds. And of whom he speaks just a little waspishly, as follows:

"He was a killer, and would foul or do anything to win. I believe, however, that Kid McCoy should be ranked next to Dempsey, with Ketchel in third place."

Oddly, according to various legends, McCoy was nobody's devoted chum himself, once they rang that bell. But Montana Jack makes no mention of that, doubtless because his memory of same is less personal and physical. As for the rest of it:

"I can't see Leonard being in the same class with McFarland and Gans. I rate this pair fourth and fifth respectively... and I put Jeffries in as the greatest heavyweight after Dempsey, and sixth among all the fighters I ever saw."

"Jeffries was left-handed, had a low crouch that was hard to penetrate, and he could take more beating than any five men who ever participated in boxing."

"Jack Johnson was a great defensive boxer but he was so much afraid of a punch that he cannot be ranked better than seventh... Bat Nelson, at his best, was so very tough that no lightweight could stand up against him over a long route."

"He kept charging into an opponent with the impact of a concrete post and, at the same time, using a cutting left to the liver that ruined several good fighters."

Belatedly and perhaps a little grudgingly, Joe Louis barely gets in under the gate at No. 10, being named possibly as a concession to modern tastes. Anyhow, he dismisses Louis somewhat briskly, calling him "a grand champion who has met all comers."

As for modern tastes, Montana—reverting to character—is less at pains to conceal his contempt, being moved to sniff disdainfully and unoriginally:

"I wouldn't go across the street to see a hundred of these mauling fights of today."

... And of course, be it ever so banal, the verdict is dead right.

4.4 Miles Bee-Line Construction Slated

Completing the present gap on the east-west road north of Magnet was among the projects advertised for bids this week by the Nebraska state highway department.

This proposal is for 4.4 miles of construction between Creighton and Laurel in both Knox and Cedar counties. This contract, when let, will be the first step since the war ended toward improving a bee-line highway from O'Neill to Sioux City. It will be a gravel surfaced road 29 feet wide, requiring 4,280 cubic yards of gravel. The grading will necessitate the excavation and moving of 245,650 cubic yards of earth.

One wooden bridge on the road is to be removed. Plans call for building 3 concrete box-culverts and laying 16 pipe culverts. Other incidental work to improve the highway will include drainage across driveways and clearing the right of way.

South Holt Title Of New Club

The meeting was called to order by the president. The minutes of the past meeting were read by the secretary.

South Holt was chosen as the name of our club.

We decided to have a meeting on June 1 at the Bayne Grubb home. A weiner roast will follow the meeting.

A new club member, Emma-rae Dye, plans to take "How's and Why's of Cooking" as a project.

The leader is now Alice Johnson instead of Mrs. Sievers.

The meeting was closed by the president, after which we were served a lunch of cool-ade, cake and sandwiches.—By Mary Jo Mahoney, news reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Jones and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones and daughter visited the John Milnar home in Stuart Sunday, May 7.

Church of Christ Opens in O'Neill

O'Neill has a new church. It is the Church of Christ and it is located in a new basement building 3 blocks south of Grattan township library.

Pastor is A. C. Utterback, of Clearwater, who has been serving Church of Christ congregations in the Elkhorn river valley for many years.

Evangelistic services will begin tonight (Thursday) at 8 p. m. Remi Duhon, of Louisiana, will be the evangelist. (See CHURCHES on Page 10 for details.)

The parishoners supporting O'Neill's new church formerly held services in the Joy school. Building has been under construction for several months.

At present it is in the form of a cement basement and will be improved later.

Miss Betty Johnson visited friends in Wayne and Norfolk for the May 6-7 weekend.
