THE ORIGIN OF RODEO

In the early days of the cattle industry, before the advent of the barbed wire fence, cattle of one rancher would stray across the imaginary boundary which was supposed to separate the ranches, and mingle with the cattle of another rancher.

It was from the arguments and wagers made among the cowboys of the different ranches of a section while on roundup together that it became a custom to hold an impromptu riding and roping contest at the close of many roundups to settle the question as to which ranch was the home of the fastest roper or best bronc rider.

These contests, while visited principally only by the contestants and the few ranches in a section, were the stepping stones to our great rodeos of today, for in order to settle an argument as to best ropers and riders of a much larger section there was held at Pecos, Tex., July 4, 1883, the first riding and roping contest where cash prizes were awarded to the winners.

This was a big public rodeo, but spectators were not charged an admission fee. The contest was held in the open flat near the court house and the prizes were $25 first and $15 second.

Morgan Livingston, top hand of the NA ranch won the steer roping, and Trav Windham, boss of the Lazy Y was second. There was no fenced in arena, and only two events, steer roping and bronc riding.

At a Fourth of July Celebration, at Prescott, Ariz., in 1888, the first rodeo or cowboy contest in which cash prizes were awarded to the winners and an admission charged the spectator, was held. It was called a tournament, and in addition to races there were only two events, steer roping and bronc riding, both won by Jaun Levias.

North Platte lays claim to staging a rodeo as a Fourth of July Celebration, in 1883, with Col. Wm. F. Cody, as chairman but all records that we have been able to dig up seem to point out that this affair was just a trout of cowboys for the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show, and we cannot find any records of any prizes having been awarded, and until other records are brought to refute it, Prescott, Ariz., will have the distinction of staging the first American (box office) rodeo.

In 1896, a big well advertised rodeo was staged in Denver, Colo., but was not a financial success, in fact there was so much work and expense to getting up a three or four day contest, that there were few of the early ones that were financially successful.

In 1897, Wyoming's great annual rodeo "Cheyenne Frontier Days" was organized and while it had financial difficulties in its first few years it endured and is today the oldest rodeo in America, its slogan, "the daddy of them all" is correct.

Up until about 25 years ago, rodeos were staged only in open arenas and practically all of them in summer, the contestants usually worked on ranches between rodeos. Now the rodeo season extends throughout the year with more than 150 well advertised rodeos during a season and admissions running into the millions.

Escapes Injury Enroute to Lynch

LYNCH—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rossmeier returned home to Sidney Monday, August 7, after having visited the former's father, John Rossmeier, who was critically ill. ### Johnson-Miller Nuptials Read

On Sunday, August 6, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon at Christ Lutheran church in O'Neill, Miss Verna Jeanne Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Miller, of Star, was united in marriage to Lysie G. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson, of Walnut.

Rev. Robert Olson solemnized the double-ring ceremony before a candle-lighted altar, decorated with bouquets of gladioli of mixed colors.

Only immediate families, including the grandparents of the bridegroom and the grandmothers of the bride, were present. The bride's only attendant, Mrs. Marvin Johnson, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, wore an aqua taffeta and net dress with a corsage of deep pink carnations. Her dress was styled similar to that of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon dress of shell-pink satin with a fitted bodice and full skirt. Her slippers were shell-pink satin, matching her dress. She also wore a rhinestone necklace and bracelet, a gift from the bridegroom. Her corsage was of white carnations.

The bridegroom and his attendant, his brother, Marvin, each wore grey with white carnation boutonnières. The wedding march was played by Miss Lois Miller, who also accompanied Reverend Olson as he sang a solo, "O Perfect Love."

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with 75 friends and relatives in attendance. In charge of the refreshments were Mrs. Gerald Kehler, Mrs. Floyd Hildreth, Mrs. Elmer Juracek and Mrs. Otto Metteis.

Eileen and Joyce Miller, Clarence and Hazel Marie Johnson served as waitresses.

Mrs. Vince Cunningham, a sister of the bride, had charge of the guest book. Miss Joyce Miller was in charge of the gift table.

For traveling the bride wore a wine gabardine suit with matching accessories.

Following a 2-weeks wedding trip through the Southwestern states, they will make their home on the bridegroom's farm in eastern Holt county.
