War — Man's Foremost Folly

When war breaks out every effort is made to fan the flame of hate. Stories of atrocities, threats of the dire results should we fall into enemy hands, all kinds of things are used to make the two nations at war hate each other.

But when all is said and done, the uncivilized and ridiculous thing about all wars is that the average soldier in any army is out trying to shoot someone that he has never seen and has no personal reason to hate.

Men are sent out against each other by other men, in many cases, in most cases, ruthless dictators who do not flinch from sending to their death if by so doing they can build their own power, their own hold over the people.

We sometimes think that the people of the United States are too easily led but it is safe to say that if all the common people of the world were as well informed as the people of this nation there would be no wars. Keeping people in ignorance is the surest way to keep them available for war.

It would never be accepted but we could safely challenge Russia or any of her satellites to open all countries wide, spend our billions to transport the common people from one nation to another, to see for themselves, and there would be no necessity to war wars.

Prosperity Lies in Working Together

"We must abandon the illusion we have been chasing that we can get more by producing less. We can get more only by producing more.

"We must return somehow to the principle of an honest day's work for an honest dollar. Every group, whether it be farmers, industry, management, finance, or labor, must recognize that prosperity does not result from what we can gouge out of each other.

"Real wealth is the result of production. It consists of goods—not gold. Of services—not silver. Only as we have a full flow of goods and services from farm and factory, from management and labor, will be we a wealthy nation."—Earl L. Butz in Successful Farming.

Prairieland Talk —

Wars Would Cease If Men Would Stay Within 'Bounds of Their Habitation'

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS

LINCOLN — An American soldier in Korea wrote home and in a loving note to his 2 little daughters, age 3 and 6, said he would come home when "a lot of bad men" were under control. That soldier will never return to a desolated home, to 2 saddened little girls and their widowed mother.

"Killed in action," that was the next word that greeted the Pennsylvania wife and mother of the 2 girls. Such a blow leaves one dumb with sorrow. It has struck in thousands of American homes during the few months of this third war that one generation has been drawn into.

War, that has ravished the earth since the dawn of history. It involves everything that rouses the passions into diabolical fury, everything that adds to human wretchedness, everything appalling to mankind. The tragedy of it is humanity is helpless to bring into being a warless world.

A war to end wars—the slogan emblazoned on the shining armor of World War I. A war to establish One World of Sweet Peace, and the guns from World War II were scarcely cooled until here is the roaring hell of War III.

Men and women have come from the wild winds of earth and have sat in council weary weeks, months and years under the deceptive banner of United Nations. Many are there with honesty of purpose to beat back war clouds by their fluttering of wing of the Dove of Peace.

Others are there with sinister designs. The substance of earth's toilers is drawn upon to maintain a chosen few in lavish luxury at Lake Success and they are getting no where—and will get nowhere until they all go home to attend to their own affairs within their own borders.

Nations, ambitious, self-exalted men reach grasping hands across the earth. It is then men fight for their homes, for their country.

When Paul stood upon Mars Hill before those wise guys of old Greece, the Greece that had drawn the plowshare of devastation through fair lands until they met up with Roman Legions, he told them something that should be repeated in the ears of men lusty for dominion today. "God that made the world . . . and hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed and the bounds of their habitation." If men will stay in the "bounds of their habitation" wars will cease.

Homemaking, Budget and Other News By Bonnie McDonald

SCENT SENSE is one way of describing this tip. When your cedar chest seems to be losing its fragrance, rub the sides down (inside, that is) with fine sandpaper. A little rubbing at a time renews the scent and sends the odor of cedar circulating.

SO YOU SEW . . . and even if you don't, you may like to try, once you know about the smart new fabrics at J. M. McDonald Co. Featured this fall is fine pin-wale corduroy, style and value leader of many fall and school uses. Not ordinary corduroy, but famous-make, soft, quality corduroy . . . for skirts, jackets, dresses, suits, jumpers, shirts. 36 inches wide, in a world of rich colors . . . yard, just $1.49.

HUBBY'S SHAVING BRUSH makes the handiest dusting brush you ever used. Especially useful for dusting dainty figurines, fabric lamp shades. Best of all, when soiled it's easy to wash. (P. S.—Make certain the brush has been discarded before you lay claim to it.)

GLAMOUR IS YOURS in little touches when you choose just the right pieces of costume jewelry at J. M. McDonald Co. Exciting new earrings, necklaces, bracelets, pins, just the pieces you need to glamorize fall costumes. Silver plated, many with make-believe jewels that sparkle like real. Best of all, they're priced at just . . . 99c.

EXTRA WARMTH is yours for your family, when you select the right sheet blankets, and have enough for every need. McDonald's white sheet blankets are full-bodied, made of fine cotton, carefully whipped for lasting wear. Compare value at this low price . . . $1.98.

NEXT TIME YOU SLICE CREAM CHEESE, use a piece of white thread. Hold the ends of the thread securely, decide the width of the slice, then push down, cutting the cheese as you would with a knife. No thick, crumbly slices, no mess.

That overworked alibi, inadventure, will have to be employed as an excuse for including the lone Democrat on the Nebraska congressional delegation in the group at the Republican state convention, as implied herein last issue when the "4 congressmen" were included among those present at the GOP conclave. Of course Mr. O'Sullivan would be received cordially any time he sees the light and joins the political group that in the long run must be relied upon to redeem the country and save the ship of state from floundering in the mire of folly.

A recent issue of this family journal carried nearly a column of "Future Subscribers." This would indicate that young patriots of Holt county believe in the scripture injunction to "be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth." But the poor kids don't know what kind of a world they have come into.

A Lincoln gent is stowed away for 18 months for writing a $2,188.63 "no funds" check in payment for a new automobile. The salesman should be eligible for a fool's cap.
