By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Hi there, all you charming people! Do you mean to tell me that it's November 2 already? Where did October go?

There oughta be a law against the way us middleaged folks are getting older!

Here it is November. There's a chill bite in the air, the leaves are piling up in heaps and winter is breathing down the back of our necks. It's a good time to do some baking and think up some other good things to eat because everyone's appetite is back for sure these brisk days. And the men who are running the cornickers get up so early that by noon they're ravenous.

Blanche Spann Pease

Why not make some good wholewheat bread for a change? It's good for you.

WHOLEWHEAT BREAD

Two cups milk, 1/3 cup honey, 4 teaspoons salt, 3 cakes fresh yeast, 2 cups lukewarm water, 10 cups wholewheat flour (Graham), 1/3 cup melted shortening. Scald milk, add honey and salt, cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water and add to lukewarm milk. Add half of the flour, mixing well. Add melted shortening and remaining flour. Cover and set in warm place, free from draft. Let rise until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Knead lightly, using as little flour on board as possible. Cover with cloth and let stand on board until almost doubled in bulk, about 40 minutes. Shape into loaves and place in greased bread pans. Cover and let stand 30 minutes longer. Bake in moderate oven at 375 F. about 1 hour. Makes 3 large or 4 small loaves.

Needing some lunch box ideas? Well, here they are:

Lunch box sandwiches can be prepared the night before and stored in the refrigerator. Wrap in waxed paper or, better yet, in a foodsaver bag.

For instance, you can use a peanut butter and honey spread. Add enough honey to peanut butter to spread easily. Will keep for a week or longer in a covered jar in your refrigerator — fine for sandwiches.

Make a mincemeat spread by grinding left over meat (pork, beef, lamb or chicken). Add chopped pickle and just enough mayonnaise to make it spread easily. This can be made the night before, too.

Egg and ham filling can be made by chopping hard cooked eggs, adding a little ground ham, a chopped pickle, and just enough mayonnaise to make it spread easily. It will keep well for several days.

You can also make up an olive and nut filling. Chop stuffed olives and nuts fine, moisten with creamcheese and mayonnaise. It's expensive, but you may want to try it once in a while. It will keep nicely for several days.

When making sandwiches to serve at home for an afternoon or evening serving make them keep in the vegetable pan in the refrigerator. They'll be all ready to serve and won't need to be wrapped. It saves time at the last minute.

And, speaking of preparing food in advance, most of us like to do that to save time and it is very nice when you are having guests to have all possible things done.

Did you know that stewed fruits and gelatin salads can be made in advance and kept in your refrigerator for an entire week?

Green salads can be prepared the day before and held at the proper temperature until serving time. Put them in the vegetable pan, or cover with waxed paper if stored in the food compartment. Marinate or add salad dressing just before serving.

Dough for refrigerator rolls can be prepared and stored in your refrigerator to use as desired. Pastry and cookie dough can be used the same way.

A quantity of waffle batter can be made up and kept in your refrigerator. It's a nice convenience when waffles are to be served for breakfast.

Subscription Winners—

We have two subscription winners today. One is "Happy Mother" (not the "Happy Mom" who wrote a few weeks ago.) Another three-months subscription goes to Mrs. Alfred Ross, Box 148, Waterville, Calif.

Dear Blanche:

At last here comes that long overdue letter I had been planning to write for so long but with all the summer work and canning, it kept me busy. Before I start with the main part of my letter, must say how I admired and enjoyed "Happy Mom's" letters which appeared in your column not long ago. How right she is!

Our little 3-year-old just about matches that song they are singing now, "Little Miss Mischief."

Well, I started this letter intending to tell you of a Sunday trip we took not long ago. My husband and I and our three little tots and my husband's brother and wife and two boys start-

Cotton Plaids Are Picked for 1950-51

MAGIC nylons, silky synthetic fabrics and eye-catching rayon blends all have their place in the modern fashion world but for all around usefulness, old-fashioned Dame Cotton still holds her place in Milady's limelight.

And so small wonder that the all-cotton wardrobes displayed by the National Cotton Council in New York have been fetching "ohs" and "ahs" from fashion fans everywhere.

"Scotch, please," seemed to be the request of the NCC pattern creators when they designed the chic scoop-neckline dress, at right, for their 1950-51 collection of winter fashion pieces.

Featuring a reversible tuxedo coat with black velveteen on one side that contrasts pleasingly with the Galey and Lord's metallic-stripped plaid on the reverse side (right), the dress is ideal for "after dark" occasions requiring sophisticated glamor.

Still another masculine type creation embodying plaid appears at left, a smoking jacket done in Farquharson Panama cloth. Masculine in flavor, the novelty jacket is paired with black velveteen slacks to match the jacket's eye-catching trim.

Scotch plaid patterns are twice-blessed choices in that they can be used in both cocktail costumes and casual "around the house" ensembles.

Furthermore, pleasing cotton plaids can be obtained with warm colors that will ward off Old Man Winter's cold breath at scotch-thrifty prices.

ed from our home at about 9:30 in the morning. We drove east on highway 20 until we got to Osmond, then turned and headed toward Yankton, S. D., to the north. How inspiring the country was, driving along that highway going north—such nice farm places and tall green corn just seemed to wave at us in the breeze as we passed by. After going through Wausa and Crofton and over the large Missouri river bridge we were soon in Yankton.

There we ate dinner and visited radio station WNAX and also listened to the afternoon get-together broadcast.

After looking the town over a bit, we started northwest on the Ft. Randall highway making Lake Andes and Pickstown our next two stops. They have Lake Andes fixed nice, I thought, as it was my first time being there. I never dreamed it was so large.

Pickstown is something to see. The town is all laid out by that big project. It makes one wonder how a town ever grew so fast and as I was told the houses will be taken down and moved away, but I wondered about that. With such nice homes there I believe the town will stay.

After leaving there we started back down toward home on highway 54 and 261. I had always thought that most of South Dakota wasn't so nice but I sure changed my mind. The farm homes were so nice and neat with the yards and roads all cleaned of weeds and trash. We had to take our hats off to the state of South Dakota—although Nebraska is still OUR state.

We arrived home about 9:30 at night, tired after our day of traveling but were satisfied. It was really worth it.

My letter is probably too long already but just had to tell of our trip.

Californian Writes— Dear Blanche:

It's been quite a while since I wrote you and it was from Nebraska instead of from California. We live out in the Trinity national forest so you see are in a restricted area. We have to be awfully careful of matches, bonfires, etc. We've had so many fires around close this year. One was just over the mountain from us and we could feel the heat from it. It was very close by.

Another fire—one of California's biggest—was just about 35 miles from us. It burned a whole town. So you see we really welcomed our rain we got last week two days before deer season opened.

The forest service was going to close all game seasons on account of fire but the rain came to the hunters' rescue.

My husband went out the first morning and brought in a forked horn buck so we are enjoying venison. Yesterday afternoon a neighbor brought us some bear meat. The bunch of men — five of them—got 3 bears, so yesterday evening we had roasted bear. The meat is very dark and sweeter than beef, but personally I'll take beef.

My husband works at a lumber mill and likes it pretty well, but once a farmer, always a farmer. Seems as if there is lots of work to be had here and getting to be more jobs available all the time. Jobs run from $1.50 to $2.50 an hour. Of course, there are jobs a little ways from here that pay $4.50 or more an hour but they are quite dangerous.

I guess I've rambled on about enough and now my boys are up for breakfast. So bye for now. MRS. ALFRED ROSS, Box 148, Waterville, Calif.

Kellar Aid Meets at Young Home—

CHAMBERS— Kellar Presbyterian Aid met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Young on Wednesday, October 25, for an afternoon meeting.

Fourteen members answered roll call. There were also one visitor and two children present.

The president, Mrs. Charles Coolidge, led the lesson which was "For an Unpopular Cause." The scripture was from Isaiah.

The whole group sang the hymn, "Will Jesus Find Us Watching?"

Mrs. Coolidge exhibited the dresses, aprons and other articles which had been made to send to missions.

It was decided that anyone having canned goods — five jars — give to Mrs. Young and those who had not have canned goods should give $1 instead. Money also goes to Mrs. Young to be sent in.

We are also collecting labels and old Christmas cards again this year.

Mrs. Art Miller, Mrs. Gene Halsey and Mrs. Elmer Wandersee were appointed to buy wedding gifts and Mrs. Ray Hoffman is to see about getting trays for the aid.

The meeting adjourned by repeating "The Lord's Prayer."

Aid will meet at the Ray Hoffman home on Wednesday, November 8, for an all-day meeting.
