Zip-up Dress Keeps Hair Dressed Up

BY EDNA MILES

NOT since the invention of the bobbypin has milady's hair ever had it so good.

Home permanents, chignons, improved shampoos and home dryers have all come to the rescue of the woman uttering that classic complaint, "I just can't seem to do a thing with my hair."

Yet while beauty experts have seemingly given their all to the business of glorifying the tresses of the fair sex, one problem has received virtually no attention, the impossibility of getting dressed without ruining a carefully groomed coiffure.

At long last, a solution has been found—a zip-up, step-in dress.

While the step-in dress is by no means a revolutionary idea, it may well be the forerunner of a fashion trend. The creation not only permits the missus to get dressed without getting so much as a wisp of hair out of place, but also eliminates the exasperating struggle to find sleeves while the dress is pulled up over the head.

At right, model Joan Skelly, her hair in perfect order, demonstrates how easy it is to step into the dress with the zipper pulled open to just below the waist.

Seconds later (at left), she stands fully dressed, her coiffure immaculate—truly a quick and painless change.

The cotton chambray step-in creation should have no trouble in winning applause from those women who have had their hair mussed up during a desperate effort to dress quickly, or from the many others who have groomed their hair after dressing, only to find telltale strands of loose hair marring an otherwise neat appearance.
