Sideways About Over, Legislature Now Ready to Settle Down for Windup

One Man's Opinion Sen. Carmody—

LINCOLN — The sideshows were over and the legislature was ready to settle down to the business at hand as it reconvened here Monday, but nobody could say when the "added attractions" would again grab the headlines away from the legislature itself. The sideshow getting the best play last week was the scrap over the wheat utilization bill, LB 1, thus far the session's most bitterly-contested issue.

It began with an opinion by the attorney-general that Lt. Gov. Charles Warner's veto of the bill was null. In a letter to Sen. Arthur Carmody, of Trenton, introducer of LB 1, Asst. Gen. William Gleason said that since Gov. Val Peterson left the state and returned within the 5 days given him by law to act on a bill, Warner had no authority in the matter.

(Peterson was in Peoria, Ill., to appear on a nationally-broadcast radio program.)

Carmody acclaimed the opinion as "indeed gratifying to the wheat growers and I'm sure will be welcomed by agricultural interests."

The next day, however, Sen. C. C. Lillibridge, of Crete, asked the attorney general's office for an opinion on the constitutionality of LB 1.

To his surprise he was given a copy of a letter written February 14—by Gleason—to Carmody, holding the bill unconstitutional. The letter was quickly passed around to an aroused group of the bill's enemies, among them Sen. William Hern, of Chadron, and Sen. Herbert J. Duis, of Gothenberg, the floor leaders of the attack on the bill.

In less than 3 hours, the agriculture committee, of which Hern is chairman and Duis is a member, pushed through by a vote of 8-1 a motion to ask the legislature's permission to introduce a bill repealing LB 1.

The feeling against Carmody for withholding the letter ran high. His co-introducers on LB 1, speaker Ed Hoyt and Sen. Ray Babcock, said they did not know of the letter from Gleason.

Carmody himself brushed off the incident. "After all, he told reporters, 'That's just one man's opinion.' He said the same thing applied to Gleason's opinion that Warner's veto was a 'nullity.'"

The legislature, on the following day, by a vote of 29-3, granted Hern committee permission to introduce the repeal bill, LB 245. Voting against its introduction were Hoyt and Babcock and Sen. K. W. Peterson, of Sargent. Carmody did not vote.

The repealer will need only 22 votes to pass. Hugo Srb, who has been clerk of the unicameral legislature since its beginning, said he could recall only one outer case where a bill was recalled the same session in which it was passed and that was on a technicality.

Before Hern asked to have the bill introduced, Lillibridge had Srb read into the legislature journal the attorney general's opinion. The membership listened in absolute silence.

Carmody worked at his desk, apparently paying no attention.

Gravel Hearing Ends with Handshake—

It was the second time in as many days Carmody had his wrists slapped by the legislature.

By a vote of 20-7, his colleagues approved a motion against "one member calling a public hearing without consent of the legislature."

This was a reference to Carmody's calling of a hearing at the capitol to hear the charge of W. B. Hall, a Stratton gravel dealer, that the state highway department had discriminated against him in awarding gravel contracts.

The hearing produced nothing more definite than Hall and State Engineer F. H. Klietsch shook hands when it was over.

The motion to censure Carmody was made by Sen. Hal Bridenbaugh, of Dakota City, after the legislature had recessed for 30 minutes so the senators could attend the hearing.

Carmody said the hearing was "a friendly meeting" and not an investigation. He called Bridenbaugh's point "not well taken, uncalled for and out of order."

He said he didn't know why it was made unless Bridenbaugh "wants to start trouble."

Sensors Appear Glad Liquor Hearing Over—

Still another sideshow was the liquor investigation under the special committee headed by Sen. Ray Babcock, of Sidney. The committee voted to call it quits at week's end after hearing Frank B. Morrison, of McCook, a former Democratic candidate for governor, describe payoffs to liquor commission enforcement agents and charge that 15 Omahans had been found guilty of breaking the state's gambling laws but still were granted liquor licenses in violation of the liquor control act.

Most of the committee members seemed glad the investigation, incomplete as it was, was over. Babcock had no comment when he was asked whether he was satisfied with the job his group had done. "I still have to live with these people," he said.

Miscellaneous—
These were other developments of the jam-packed week:
The revenue committee, by a vote of 5 to 2, sent out the floor Sen. Otto Proh's bill to

DON'T WAIT FOR SPARE SECONDS TO DO BEAUTY FIRSTS: UTILIZE WORKING HOURS

BY EDNA MILES

WOMEN who insist they have no spare moments for beauty routines often discover they can find the necessary time by combining activities.

If, at the end of a long working day, you would prefer relaxing with a book to prettifying up your hands, you may discover it isn't really necessary to make a choice. Do both.

There's no need to sit idle, pouting with boredom, while you give your cuticles your weekly treatment. Do one hand at a time, soaking your fingertips in a bowl of oil, leaving the other free to turn the pages of your currently favorite novel.

This is a good trick to remember when giving yourself a facial or applying cream treatments. Instead of sitting around and counting minutes until the procedure is finished, you might try taking a nap or even—if you're really intent upon getting full value from your time—washing the supper dishes.

Discolored elbows, too, can be whitened while you knit or read. Slice a lemon in two and place each half in a bowl small enough to hold it in firm position. A custard dish is excellent for this. Place your elbows upon the lemons and let them bleach while you finish your argyle or an exciting chapter.
