MacArthur's Message Responsible for Tears as Salons Watch Drama on TV

LINCOLN—The unicameral legislature deliberately adjourned at 11:30 a.m. last Thursday, April 19.

A television set (large size) was rolled into position and the Nebraska senators settled back to view and hear one of the dramas of the century: General Douglas MacArthur's report to a joint session of congress on his removal from supreme command in the Far East.

Sen. Frank Nelson, of O'Neill, reached O'Neill Friday to spend the weekend, told The Frontier "there were tears in a good many eyes" when MacArthur climaxed his address with "an old soldier never dies—just fades away".

Twice a Day Sessions Begin—

Comparatively speaking, it was a quiet week in the legislature. With most of the "sideshows," like special investigations and personality clashes, shoved again into the background, the 43 men who write the laws for Nebraska settled down to workmanlike sessions which pointed to adjournment sometime between May 15 and May 25.

To speed the flow of bills through the mill, both morning and afternoon sessions were to get underway this week, which will have the effect of doubling the daily output. This was made possible with the completion of public hearings on the 550-odd bills that have been introduced.

And more important, perhaps, there's a feeling of harmony in the high-ceeinged senate chamber. Even the weekly problem of what time to convene after the weekend recess, was solved by compromise. Senators who live close enough to go home for the weekend prefer to start at 10 a.m. Monday, so they can spend Sunday night at home. But far western representatives, who are forced to remain in the capitol, want to get started at 9. With classic simplicity, the two factions agreed to launch this week's work at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

FORD DEALERS KNOW FORDS BEST!

Wheat Backers Await 1953—

Backers of LB 1, the ill-fated wheat utilization bill, gave up as the senator sped a repeal measure toward passage. Sen. Arthur Carmody, of Trenton, sponsor of LB 1, said the wheat men would try again in 1953 when there's a less "unfriendly situation."

The all-star primary, which brought the national spotlight to Nebraska in 1948 was dealt a death blow as the legislators, by voice vote, approved a repealer as part of the bulky election codification bill. Sen. W. J. Williams, sponsor of the repeal bill, lost another skirmish, however, when he attempted to knock out the pre-primary conventions in the same codification measure.
