Mrs. Harrington was advised on Thursday that a Tokyo call would be forthcoming, huddled near her telephone hour-after-hour, and at 10:30 Friday night the call finally came through. Her nephew, who is well-known among O'Neill's younger set, works in an army office of Korea. His headquarters was surrounded for a time in early December, but escaped the Red trap. Members of the cast are: Dorothy Dalton, Dorothy Vaia, Robert Parkins, Mildred O'Malley, George Hammond, Mildred Cavanaugh, Constance Bigin, Catherine McNichols, Ted Sirek, Eilene Kelly, Bill Ryan, Junior Shoemaker, Verne Coyne, Robert Miles, Leone Mullen, and Francis Hickey. . . (The following is quoted from a column written by "The Observer," who was none other than George Hammond now the "Voice of The Frontier): The controversy raging among the papers of this vicinity for quite some time concerning the birthplace of Frankie Leahy has been settled once and for all, by Mr. Leahy's mother. Mrs. Leahy dispelled all doubt as to where her son had been born last week when she stated that he had been born in O'Neill and not in Winner, S. D., as most of the papers had stated and that he was born in the Howard home in O'Neill, which is a block south of St. Mary's academy on the corner. Mrs. Leahy continues by saying that the family did not move to Winner until Frankie was a year-old, but it was in Winner that he received his education. Mrs. Leahy also brought along the birth certificate from St. Patrick's church of her son who was destined to fill the famed shoes of Knute Rockne, "fighting Irish" pilot.

Mrs. L. C. Walling went to Omaha Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walling, of Albion. They attended the graduation of the latter's daughter, Miss Barbara Walling, from Immanuel Lutheran nurse's training school. They returned Sunday.
