Banquet Theme 'Old Fashioned Garden'

STUART—The annual junior-senior banquet was held in the city auditorium Thursday evening, May 10.

The portion of the auditorium used for the banquet room was enclosed by a replica of a stone wall. A canopy of blue sprinkled with silver stars and centered with a full moon was overhead. Streamers of green and silver, the class colors, falling from the outside edge of the canopy to the stone wall completed the enclosure and gave the shimmering effect of moonlight.

Following the theme, "Old Fashioned Garden," a fish pool in a bed of flowers centered the room and the banquet tables formed a semi-circle around it.

The tables were decorated with green candles, silver colored watering pots and mixed flowers. Nut cups were miniature silver colored watering pots and favors were miniature watering pots with spade and rake.

The program follows: "Garden Gate," by Dick Hytrek; "A Bouquet to the Juniors," by Kenny Batenhorst; "Rhapsody of Roses," solo by Jim Hytrek; "Daisies Never Tell," will, by Billie Rutherford; "Every Blossom Once a Seed," prophecy, by Pat Engler and Bunny Seger; "Noxious Weeds," boys quartet.

The menu consisted of "Moonlight and Roses," "Humming Birds," "Buttercup Petals," "Cloverleaf Rolls," "Sun Dial Salad," "Snowball Blossoms," "Green Berries," "Lovers' Delight," "Flower Nectar," and "Garden Pebbles."

The meal was prepared by the mothers of the juniors and served by 5 boys and 5 girls chosen from the sophomore class. There were 60 served including the faculty with their husbands and wives.

MILLIONTH STOCKHOLDER... Brady Denton (above) is the millionth stockholder of the American Telephone and Telegraph company—the only business in the U.S. to achieve such a broad democracy of ownership. Denton, an auto salesman in Saginaw, Mich., is shown with his family learning about a switchboard. Much money used by the Bell Telephone system for research, improvements and expansion has been made available by people, in all walks of life, who see fit to invest in Bell stock. The tremendous increased demand for phone service has been felt in O'Neill, too. Since 1943 the O'Neill exchange has grown from 499 to 1,081 subscribers. This unprecedented growth has made necessary the expenditure of large sums of money to keep abreast of the demand. In 1947 the O'Neill telephone building was enlarged to approximately twice its former size and between 1945 and the present time 7 positions of switchboard have been added. In addition to this, toll equipment has been added to handle the increase in long distance calls. All of the company owned rural lines have been converted to metallic or 2-wire service from the old 1-wire or ground type service. Also 4 of the rural lines owned by the farmers and ranchers have been changed over to the 2-wire system. It has been necessary to increase personnel from 11 employees in 1943 to 28 at present.
