3 Couples to Renew Vows

In Michigan, attended school for a year in Chicago, Ill., and attended a boarding school south of St. Louis, Mo., where her sister was a nun.

Then, as a young lady, she spent several years in Butte, Mont., where "madly" she worked for the presidential election of the late William Jennings Bryan. So keen was her interest in Bryan, another Nebraskan, that she measures her sojourn in that state by Bryan's political moves.

In 1898 she returned to O'Neill. She became aware of C. E. Stout the night he escorted her (and 2 others) to a dance.

"That was customary in these days," grins C. E. "We wanted to be sure all the girls were there."

It was the late Rt. Rev. Cassidy who performed the nuptial rite a half-century ago.

Today the Stouts look back upon a busy and colorful 50 years.

When they were young both were active in O'Neill's theatrical life. Both vividly recall how Mrs. Stout used to sing in her soprano voice, and one of Mr. Stout's big moments was the time he played "Lord Dollar Clutch" in a comedy titled "Little Tycoon."

"Everybody had to make their own fun in those days," observes Mrs. Stout, "and we had no trouble in doing it."

Mr. Stout had a turn at mayor of O'Neill. It was during his 6 years at the helm that paving was brought to the city.

They became the parents of 2 daughters — Irma (Mrs. Froelich) and Demaris (Mrs. Birmingham). Both married native Holt county sons.

Mr. Birmingham is president of the First National bank, at Atkinson, and the Emmet State bank, of Emmet. He also is an extensive landowner. Mr. Birmingham is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Birmingham, pioneer O'Neill residents.

Mr. Froelich, now a prominent Chicago, Ill., attorney, is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Froelich.

While Mr. Froelich's offices are in Chicago, he has the distinction of being an extraordinary commuter. He spends about one-third of his time with his family here at O'Neill, making frequent round trips between the 2 points.

The Birmingham have 3 daughters—Mary Louise, now with WOW-TV in Omaha; Barbara, a student at Duchesne college, Omaha; Marie, a 1951 St. Marys academy graduate.

The Froelichs have 5 children: William J. jr., attending Creighton university, Omaha; Nancy, who attends Duchesne, Omaha; Mary, Charles and James, all St. Mary's academy grade school pupils.

Among relatives who will be here from a distance for Saturday's celebration are George and Claude Stout, both of Tekamah, brothers of Mr. Stout; Mrs. J. P. (Maude) Gilligan, of Nebraska City, and Mrs. Stella Latta, of Omaha, sisters of Mr. Stout, and J. V. Dwyer, of Butte, Mont., brother of Mrs. Stout. Mr. Dwyer and Mrs. Stout are the only living members of the original Dwyer family.
