SCHAFFER AGAIN VICE-PRESIDENT

O'Neill Stockman Returns to Post Another Year

Dewey C. Schaffer, of O'Neill, one of Holt county's most prom-inent livestock men, Friday was reelected vice - president of the Nebraska Stock Growers' association at the annual meeting held in Soiux City.

Schaffer had held the same post the past year. J. H. Vinton, of Gordon, was reelected president, and W. A. Johnson, of Alliance, was reelected secretarytreasurer.

The ranchers formally called upon congress to repeal the wage and price stabilization program, lift slaughter quotas and cancel all livestock roll

A resolution asking for the death of the government's antiinflation program was one of a number passed during closing ed his appointments this week. Other resolutions:

1. Protested the present parity price for cattle and urged a new price for cattle and drged a new price "for some certain United. States standard grade of cattle instead of the present fallacious parity price based upon the av-erage of all cattle."

2. Urged abolishing of Nebras-ka's nonpartisan legislature. 3. Asked for fair consideration by the government in drafting livestock industry labor.

4. Opposed all payments, grants-in-aid and subsidies by the government to livestock men in view of other huge govern-tle for tax purposes.

7. Endorsed the work of the Christian rural overseas program, the national livestock loss pre-vention board, the American meat institute, the national live-stock and meat board, the national livestock tax committee and their own officers and executive council.

Raymond Moley, contributing editor of Newsweek, and William B. Huie, editor of the American Mercury magazine, scored President Truman and his administration harshly for conduct of foreign and domestic affairs.

Harold A. Schueth, 18, a farm youth who lives 9½ miles southwest of Clearwater, Sunday became the first drowning victim of the year in the waters of the upper Elkhorn basin. He died about 3 p.m., while bathing near the U.S. highway 20-275 bridge, 2 miles east of O'Neill.

With him were 3 companions, none of whom was a proficient swimmer. They were: Robert Bartak, of Ewing; Misses Mary Ann Schroeder and Alice Young, both of O'Neill.

After Schueth apparently was in trouble, the trio went for help. Several fishermen downstream about 150 yards were non-swimmers and several passing motorists were stopped, but no one could aid.

Finally they sent to O'Neill' for the police and fire depart-ments. Assistant Police Chief Joe Wert took along James Mc-Kenny, 18, a 1951 O'Neill high school senior, who promptly re-covered the body in approxi-mately the same location where it was seen to go down.

Schueth's companions estimated the body had been submerged at least 20 minutes. They believed he had stepped into a deep hole. A husky redheaded youth, he had been bathing in bibless overalls. His companions theorized that the weight of
