Pairieland Talk

Each bearing his burden of sorrow, Have crossed that bridge since then.

I see the long procession Still passing to and fro, The young heart hot and restless, The old subdued and slow.

The McEvony and Thompson band, the General O'Neill supervised colonists anchored their faith in the Elkhorn and before bridges were introduced crossed the river at a ford a mile or so east of town. It was here that Col. Neil Brennan and other travel-weary freighters pulled off their boots and bathe their feet in the soothing nectar of the sands.

Illinois is the 39th state to legalize the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine. More and more this product is becoming popular on dinner tables. Cow butter turned out by the dairies is not too good. They claim to make it from sweet cream. First quality butter is obtained only from sour cream. The high price of butter has much to do with this. Some turning to the use of oleo. Some say they prefer it to sweet cream churned butter, which may be on the way out. Milking cows means work. And the big money in cattle now the milking and separating job has been turned over to the calf.

O'Neill has entertained such notables as the late William Jennings Bryan, Theodore Roosevelt, Governor Crounse, and at one time the North Western train was held here while William Howard Taft stood on the platform of his special car in company with Congressman M. P. Kinkaid and addressed a crowd of O'Neill patriots. Another notable in the person of the honorable secretary of the interior department comes to town. They come in on wings now instead of on wheels or horseback.

Those representatives of 15 states meeting at the agricultural college in Lincoln to do research work in "grass breeding" might learn something if they would come up here where there is grass. I hear expressed by many that the country is over-run with researchers and specialists living off of public funds and accomplishing little or nothing worthwhile. Grass breeding - nature has attended to that in generous measure in Nebraska.

Two rainless days. Then another gully washer, a wild wind the forerunner, the night lighted by electric streaks across the heavens, this to "break the clouds to let the water out," as my 4-year-old granddaughter expressed it. A blinding flash of light, a mighty crash and the light above our heads went out. A stream came from the "break" in the cloud and the wrath of wind and rain was over, leaving the water soaked earth another supply to soak up.

Nebraskans who have sustained losses from floods have not only the sympathy but the assistance of the public. Having invested in property in localities that may be flooded, not many can leave their holdings and move out.
