Truckers Should Pay 3d of Costs

Gov. Val Peterson's non-stop battle with the trucking industry went another round last week with the chief executive tossing a couple more verbal haymakers at what he calls the "rubber tired boxcars" and the damage they do to Nebraska's disintegrating roads.

Speaking at a rally in Lexington of the Central Nebraska Branch of the North-South Highway association, Peterson said a survey had shown that truckers should pay one-third of all road cost in the state. The study, he said, revealed that trucks use the road 11 times as much as passenger cars.

The governor, who has fought the truckers almost from the day he took office, was successful in getting the legislature to approve more scales to crackdown on overload violators but the trucking lobby, represented by Paul Halpine, of Lincoln, was the winner in its fight to block the imposition of stiffer registration fees on trucks.

No Teeth

To the surprise of no one, an assistant attorney-general has discovered that the loyalty oath law sponsored by Sen. Walter Jackson Williams, formerly of Ravenna, and now a new resident of Kearney, has no teeth.

As Assistant Attorney-General William Gleason put it, "The statute contains no penal section for non-observance."

The law, in short, is a mess. Even its sponsor conceded that it is "all screwed up." And the American Legion, which asked Senator Williams to father the bill, is a long way from being proud of it.

Gleason's findings were in response to a long list of questions submitted by Secretary of State James Pittenger, who is charged with the unhappy job of trying to administer a sloppy law, and by the University of Nebraska which has on its payroll many of the persons affected by the law.

Governor Peterson was urged to veto the measure. Instead, he called Williams in and offered him a chance to take the bill back to the floor and improve it. Williams declined so Peterson signed the measure. He later felt subsequent legislatures could improve the law.

The law requires loyalty oaths from everyone who is paid out of public funds, except certain exempt officers, and becomes effective Aug. 27.

Stop-Off Enroute

EWING—Rev. and Mrs. Harold Young and boys of Eskridge, Kans., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred May, of Topeka, Kans., visited with Mr. and Mrs. Carol Sumner, of Ewing, on Tuesday, June 26, on their way home from a vacation trip to South Dakota.

Well Done—

The clean cut men in the trim blue uniforms of the Nebraska Safety Patrol last week won a "well done" from their boss, Col. C. J. Sanders.

The colonel credited more intense patrolling of Nebraska highways with helping to cut the number of highway fatalities this year below a similar period in 1950. Sanders said his troopers traveled 368,573 miles during May as compared with 337,815 last year. The activity resulted in the number of violation cards issued increasing from 4,795 last May to 6,743 this year.

The patrol chief also thinks the newspapers and radio stations of the Cornhusker state have rendered outstanding service by helping to keep the motoring public safety-conscious.

Centralization

Three state senators have conferred with Governor Peterson on a proposal to reorganize the state agencies concerned with motor vehicles in an effort toward centralization.

The lawmakers, all from Northeast Nebraska, met with the governor last week. They are Dwight Burney of Hartington, L. M. Shultz, of Rogers and Charles Wilson, of Norfolk.

Biggest shift suggested by the senators would be to change the present arrangement whereby the state department of agriculture operates ports-of-entry into the state. The legislators think this should be the job of the safety patrol.

Governmental reorganization plans have not fared very well before recent legislatures. Recommendations of a 1949 legislative council committee were thumbed down by the 1951 legislature.

In Brief

Other statehouse developments in brief:
Reports on file with the secretary of state showed that with several final statements not yet in, lobbyists of the 1951 legislature received $101,939.
A bad gall bladder has forced the resignation of Nathan Pont of Stanton as acting chairman of the liquor commission. Gus Prestegard of Lincoln, who has been a commissioner only a few weeks is now chairman.
The game commission promoted Jack D. Strain from farm manager and conservation officer to the new post of land management supervisor.
