

O'NEILL'S NEW HOMES . . . These are the first pictures in an exclusive series in The Frontier on new post-World War II O'Neill homes. Top panel shows the Harold E. Weier residence, 818 East Everett. It is a 3-bedroom single-story home with breeze-way and garage, and includes kitchen, dinette and living room. There is a full basement, and an unusual corner fireplace. The house is of combination brick veneer and wood siding construction, and was completed on Thanksgiving day, 1950. The Frank Clements residence (below), 218 Fremont street, was completed in December, 1950. It is a ranch style home of stone construction, features 5 rooms and a bath, a picture window and a recreation room in the basement.—The Frontier Photos & Engravings.

ELECTROCUTED . . . Charles Tessier, 30, a Consumers Public Power district employee at Norfolk, was electrocuted on Monday, June 25. The fatality was indirectly attributed to a severe electrical storm which brought out power linemen. Burial was at O'Neill.

WORLD'S SMALLEST AIRPORT . . . Takeoffs from and landings on the world's smallest airport will be featured in the National Air Shows exhibition at Municipal airport here in connection with the forthcoming O'Neill celebration, sponsored by the American Legion. The automobile rig (above) serves as a rolling runway for the Piper Cub. — The Frontier Engraving from a magazine clipping.

DOWN MEMORY LANE . . . Turning back the pages of yesterday's O'Neill photo album here's a glimpse of the interior of Bill LaVrollette's saloon in the days of 1911, when O'Neill was a rugged frontier town. Beyond the bar are Frank Clark (foreground)

HOLCOMBS REUNITE . . . Ninety-six descendants of the late James Holcomb, who was an early settler in the Elgin vicinity, reunited Sunday, July 1, in Ford's park here. Head of the family today is Mrs. Frank Holcomb, of Bayside, Calif., whose husband died in 1943. Her daughters are: Mrs. Hugh (Margaret) Carr, of Amelia; Lyle Holcomb, of Bayside; Mrs. Clyde (Ruby) Burge, of Amelia; and Mrs. Opal Roderick, of Bayside.—The Frontier Photo & Engraving.

4-HERS AT CLUB CAMP . . . This photograph shows a portion of the 350 4-H club boys and girls and their leaders who gathered at Hidden Paradise at Long Pine for the annual club camp. Campers came from Antelope, Boyd, Rock, Brown, Holt, Wheeler, Garfield, Thomas, Blaine, Hooker and Cherry counties. County agents and home agents helped with the arrangements. Agents assisting with the camp were: Miss Dorothy Shettler, of Ainsworth; Robert Herrington, of Valentine;

Howard Tempel, of Thedford; W. A. Buchanan, of Neligh; Walt Sire, of Butte; Willis Tharfer, of Burwell, and A. Neil Dawes, of O'Neill. In addition to the county agents, 4 specialists were furnished from the state 4-H office. The theme of the camp was nature study. The boys and girls enjoyed hikes, singing, games, fishing and sports of all kinds.—O'Neill Photo Co.

MRS. ROBERT R. WILSON . . . In a nuptial rite solemnized on Friday, June 22, at the Presbyterian church in Verdel, Miss Joy Tuch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Tuch, of Verdel, became the bride of Robert R. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilson, of Redbird.—O'Neill Photo Co.
