Methodist Leader Attends Parley

Among the 1,500 Methodist pastors and lay leaders who participated in the national Methodist town and country conference at Sioux City July 21-24, was Rev. J. LaVerne Jay, of O'Neill, district superintendent of northeast district.
 The conference, called by the council of Bishops and by the board of missions and church extension of the Methodist church, was planned to discuss the importance and place of the church in the rural and smaller communities of America, to help the smaller churches better the service they render to men, women and children in their communities.

Bishop Charles W. Brashares, of Des Moines, Ia., was general chairman and keynote speaker. Reverend Jay participated in a unique feature of the conference when on Sunday the delegates visited some 196 churches in 39 counties of 4 states within a radius of 80 miles of Sioux City. The delegates conducted the worship and preaching services, taught church school classes, and discussed with the churches their problems of leadership and of religious education. It is estimated that 20,788 people were reached in the preaching services, and 17,000 in the church school sessions.
 "Whole nations are threatened with revolution today because they have not helped the land to meet the needs of their people," said Bishop Brashares in his opening address.
