NEBRASKA GETS ITS 200 THOUSANDTH NORTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE

Another important milestone in Nebraska telephone development has just been reached with the installation of the 200 thousandth Northwestern Bell telephone in this state.

Telephone growth in Nebraska has been rapid in recent years. Nearly 66,000 Northwestern Bell telephones have been added since 1945 — an average gain of about 1,000 telephones per month.

It has been a big job to keep pace with Nebraska's increasing telephone needs — to provide more equipment, more lines, more buildings — the many facilities necessary to meet growing demands for service and to improve service.

Since 1945, our investment in telephone plant and equipment in this state has increased $24,000,000 or nearly 80 per cent — and further additions of about $20,000,000 are planned for the next few years. Times like these emphasize the importance of adequate telephone service and the value to the state of a telephone company which is financially healthy and strong enough to do the job well.

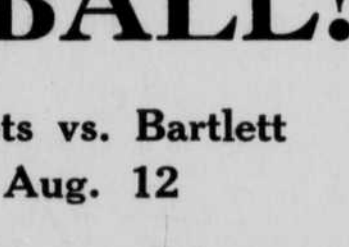

Behind each of our Nebraska telephone employees today stands about $17,000 of telephone equipment — bought by the savings of a million investors. Only as long as our earnings are good will investors keep putting up the money to buy the poles, wires and buildings that keep the service good and let it expand.
