Lowrie Courtship Carried on in Top Buggy Drawn by Bay Horse

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS

LINCOLN — From a personal letter I learn that Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Lowrie observed their golden wedding in August at their Minnesota home.

Reverend Lowrie's brother, Clinton, a retired minister, was among the relatives and friends who were guests. He also mentions a visit from his 2 sisters, Helen, a widow, and Flora, with her husband, Judge Donohoe.

The Lowrie family, Rev. and Mrs. N. S. Lowrie and children, were among the early residents in O'Neill, their home being on Everett street between Second and Third.

Congratulations are in order for Will and his estimable wife, and should I have the pleasure again of contacting them this coming winter out in San Diego, Calif., I will ask Mrs. Lowrie how come she put up with Will for 50 years. But that the melody of the wedding bells lingers after the passing of half a century is of special interest. The romance bloomed a courtship was brought to fruition in a top buggy drawn by a little bay horse I had raised, broke to saddle and harness, and sold to the elder Reverend Lowrie who took "Doc" to Lincoln when the family moved there.

Will and his lady friend, a farm girl, drove that little bay about the countryside while both were taking work at the state university. And the horse and buggy have not yet been outclassified for such purposes.

Tom Whelan, a wealthy farmer and grain dealer, is the first citizen from North Dakota to receive recognition for an important federal post, he being assigned to the diplomatic service as ambassador to Nicaragua. Volodymyr Holubiv is the 150,000th displaced person to find refuge in the United States and is to be employed on a Wisconsin farm. 45,000 tons of building materials is turned out every hour by the country's mills and factories. A Douglas Skyrocket has attained a speed of 1,000 miles per hour at an elevation of 12 miles. Bishop Homer A. Tomlinson, head of the Church of God group, is reported to undertake a 21-day fast and then start on a tour of the states as a candidate for president of the United States. The American delegation representing the youth of a church group is back from a youths' congress recently held in Paris where 6,000 young people of the church from 23 countries got together in a 5-day session. This is the day of youths' gatherings. The San Francisco, Lake Success and other assemblies of the grey-beards being pretty much of a flop maybe the kids will take over.

What is the official survey? What is an underwriter, a burning desire, a last-minute hunch? Is the title to the queen of the exhibit hereditary? What becomes of the residue, the lost cause, the under dog? What is a swingster? Where does it go when you throw up the sponge, throw a party, or sick your neck out?

Service men of the war that terminated when the first A-bomb wiped out a Japanese city to the number of 5,500,000 got in on the educational provisions of the GI bill of rights, at a total cost to the brain and brawn of the country that pays the piper of 4-billion dollars.

When Clara Barton, organizer of the American Red Cross, landed with a cargo of necessities and dainties at a Cuban port, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, in command of the Rough Riders, went to Miss Barton to buy some of that cargo's dainties for his sick and wounded men. He was informed nothing in that cargo was for sale. "But, Miss Barton, the need is urgent. How can I get some of these supplies?" urged Colonel Roosevelt. "You may have all you want by just asking for it," replied Miss Barton. Not for sale. The best things in life cannot be bought. The verdant loveliness under the blue of early autumn skies, the charm of gay colors, the blooming goldenrod, a day in the open field in the mild September—nature invites the weary pilgrim, the hard pressed with financial stringency to take their fill, "without money and without price." Friendships, the tender ties that link two souls, the brotherhood and fellowship of kindred minds and communion with the Infinite. These cannot be bought—take your fill by "just asking for it!"

A half century ago the stampede was on for the Yukon in search of gold. Now iron ore has been found in quantities sufficient for any needs that can now be foreseen.

Latest figures made public disclose that only 177 out of 1,000 of Nebraska patriots 65 or over are on the state pension roll. Many old timers who learned the trick of self-support through the necessity of root hog or die look upon the assistance setup as a work of charity and do not care to be so counted if able to shift for themselves. Others of the aged have ample means and still others are in the care of friends. Many who receive aid find it necessary because of misfortune, others have neither the gift nor the urge to "lay up treasures on earth." Maybe after all old Doc Townsend had the best pension ideas and it could well have been financed with the dollars that have been thrown to the winds across the earth, together with the "subsidies" handed out at home. But counting the number "on relief" those holding jobs under the setup should be included.

Will the editor stand corrected? There were no "sod shanties." "The Little Old Sod Shanty on My Claim" to the contrary notwithstanding. The sod house was an institution of architectural simplicity, holding within its 4-foot walls unsurpassed comfort during extremes of heat and cold. Shanty? Palsied be the hand that attempts placing the homestead palace of prairieland sod in the shanty class. Like the printers of today, who never experienced the thrill of pulling the lever of a G. Washington hand press to get out the weekly edition, they have missed the great adventure of the trade, so if you have had no association with sod houses you have missed the best part of prairieland living.

The $83,000,000 Pentagon, sprawling over half of official Washington and taking within its ample walls the nation's defense setup, is the biggest thing in a single unit strictly under government control. The building has 7,300 windows, 17 miles of corridors, 28 bus loading platforms, parking space for 8,200 cars, 40,000 telephones, 31,300 holding jobs there, 4,000 clocks, 4 men who do nothing but replace 600 light bulbs that burn out every day and every 24 hours 10 tons of waste paper is hauled away.

Ainsworth, Bassett and Burwell high school bands will be among the 65 high school musical organizations to be represented band day, another attraction to keep the gay procession moving at the capital city. October 13 is the appointed time for the school kids to strut down O street to the blare of horns and rumble of drums, and then to the university stadium for the whoopee there.
