

Lighter Bassett Club Wins, 20-12

The Rock county high school grid team sped past the O'Neill high Eagles, 20-12, Friday night in Carney park. Speed is the word. The visitors slanted the O'Neill ends without much difficulty in the first half and registered 2 touchdowns. The first marker came when the game was only a few minutes old. Bassett marched down the field in a sustained drive.

It was George Smith, hard-driving football-minded kid, who wrecked the Eagles. He hammered at the ends and set up all 3 touchdowns. Smith is a 175-pound gem who was injured in the 3d period but stayed in the game to the satisfaction of the crowd.

Don Godel made both O'Neill TD's after they were setup by Don Calkins' hard-running and a long forward caught by Calkins. Both O'Neill markers came in the second half.

The Eagles completed but 1 of a half-dozen flips in the first half, did better in the second. Bassett's second touchdown was ruled good after a lengthy conference of officials. The visitors' 3d TD came when Mickey Morton skirted his own left end from the O'Neill 28.

The Eagles outweighed Bassett but couldn't cope with the visitors' better blocking and tackling. The O'Neill Municipal band performed at intermission. Despite a touch of winter in the air the band maneuvers, under the lights and in blackout, pleased the customers. It was the fanciest marching yet seen on the O'Neill grid.

The Eagles entertain the Burwell Longhorns here Friday night. The 48-piece Burwell band will divide time with the O'Neill band for the half-time performance.

Cards Punished by Cathedral, 48-0

Coach Shorty Miles's St. Mary's Cardinals got off to an inauspicious start last Thursday night against Cathedral high, of Lincoln. The Bluebirds drove home a 48-0 victory.

The Bluebirds reached the 48 mark near the end of the 3d period. (A 48-point margin officially terminates a 6-man game.) Cathedral's regulars scored 4 touchdowns on 7 plays in little more than a quarter.

Ed Cripe passed to John Steinauer for 13 yards and the first tally; Steinauer ran 5 for the second after Dick Neal had blocked and recovered a SMA punt on the 5. It was 20-0 at the end of the first. Cathedral added 2 TD's in the second. Cripe went 30 to score after intermission. John Fagan got the finale when he scooped up a St. Mary's fumble and ran 5 to score.

Don Becker, end, and Jim De-Backer, quarterback, were hurt, not seriously.

The Cards play St. Patrick's, at Fremont, on October 5.

Turn Unfinished Attic Into Fine Playroom for Youngsters

BY EDNA MILES

MODERN living in small compact houses is fine, declare most young mothers, as long as the sun is shining, the days are warm and the children can be shooed outdoors for play. But come a rainstorm or a snowfall and things are vastly different. Many of today's architects, preoccupied with picture windows and radiant heating, seem to forget to provide a place for cooped-up small fry.

If yours is a small house, where space is at a premium, perhaps you can find your answer to the cold-and-rainy-day problem in your unfinished attic. Convert it into a playroom, where your children can be kept warm and dry without disrupting the entire house.

THIS need not be a prohibitively costly venture if you use an inexpensive insulating board for covering walls and rafters. This material, which is available in large sheets, narrow planks and a variety of tile shapes, not only fills in bare areas and provides its own decorative effect, but it also provides heat insulation and helps quiet sound, makers claim.

To convert your attic into a playroom, begin by placing knee-panels under the sloping roof at a point which will allow a five-foot rise from floor to rafters. Under these walls, build in a set of continuous three-tier drawers running the length of the room. These should provide ample storage area

Bad weather is no bugaboo to these children whose playroom, constructed for them in an unfinished attic, provides plenty of interesting things to do on rainy or stormy days.

not only for toys and play equipment, but also for blankets, out-of-season clothing and other family items.

Extras for playroom fun-time include a swing screwed into an overhead collar beam, built-in blackboards flanking a window, and an elevated platform for electric trains.

This room can be converted later into a bedroom for your children when they reach the age that a playroom is no longer useful.
