ARE THEY READY?

If your small son or daughter is going to enter school this fall, don't wait until Mary comes home from school with a headache or Johnny has a toothache to find out that one of them has eyes that need attention, or unhealthy tonsils, and the other has decayed teeth. Take them to your Doctor, have them looked over—just as you would have your automobile inspected if you were going to start on a long trip—and follow your doctor's advice. Take them to the dentist, or if necessary to the throat or eye-specialist.

"Every child looks forward to the beginning of school life with mingled feelings of dread and pleasure, parents realize, too, that when their small son or daughter reaches school age, an important period in the child's life is begun. The success or failure in after years depends a great deal on how the child makes use of the educational opportunities that are offered. He has every chance to make good at school if he is well and fit. He is always handicapped if he is not well. And the time to find out about his physical condition is before he starts to school.

"From the examinations of the prospective first-graders that were made throughout Nebraska during the Spring and Summer of 1926 and in connection with which nearly 2000 children have been carefully gone over, it is evident that many children throughout the state will enter school at a definite disadvantage as compared with their healthier comrades. Some have greatly enlarged tonsils and adenoids growths in their throats which partly obstruct the passage of air, making them more susceptible to colds and bronchitis. Others are under weight for age and height and may have decayed teeth.

"Stooped posture is not uncommon even among small children, also defects of vision or impaired hearing, defects which should not be allowed to go uncorrected. The ounce of prevention at this stage of the child's life may save a great deal of suffering later on. Certainly much of a child's progress during the whole of his school life depends on the normal functioning of his eyes and ears.

"The responsibility rests with the parents. Every child should be taken to the family doctor or a Child Health Conference in the spring before going to school in September, and the following questions should be asked:

1. Is my child up to the standard in weight and height for his age?
 2. Are his tonsils or adenoids enlarged or infected so as to be dangerous?
 3. Are his teeth in good condition?
 4. Are his vision and hearing normal?
 5. Is his posture correct, does he stand and sit and walk correctly?
 6. Is the food my child eats, proper in kind and in amount?
 7. Will you give his protection against Diphtheria and Smallpox?
- "Unless the doctor assures you that these questions can be answered satisfactorily your child is beginning his educational career handicapped. If you were planning a long automobile trip you would have your car put in good order. Should you not be equally careful of your child before he begins his long educational journey?"
- "A Get Ready for School" Child Health Conference will be held at the O'Neill Public School April 25th.
