BRICK BATS.

Last year a guy named Ellis Black was full of pep and glee; he thought that he was on the track of fortune's shifty key. He planned to have ten thousand bucks in nineteen-twenty-eight; they'd have to haul his cash in trucks and ship it round by freight. His plans were simple, also; they'd work as sure as fate; so Silas, far from feeling blue, was certain he'd be great. But clouds of woe loomed in his sky, the markets all went flat and left his holdings high and dry, not worth a last year's hat. Besides he plumb forgot the rent, the taxes, coal and ice, the cash that always must be spent for beefsteak, cheese and rice. So now instead of being rich, with wads of filthy kale, he's lying prostrate in the ditch, beside life's tough old trail. Of such are dreams of mortal man, who sees a star of hope; he thinks he has a winning plan but here's a little dope that trickles up from wisdom's fount, which all us folks should catch—it never pays to try to count our chickens before they hatch.—Brick Smith.

CELIA ITEMS.

The community truck freighted a load of corn for D. F. Scott from J. K. Ernst's near O'Neill, Friday. The truck is always welcome at that hospitable home. Their son, Ralph is learning to play the Italian line of instrument, the accordion, and will in all probability entertain Mussolini at some time in the future.
The 4th passed off very quietly in Celia, since the menfolks that didn't labor in the field, trying to raise that surplus McMullen is worried so much about, left for different places, where they celebrated in style. The Riverside, Stuart and O'Neill each had some worthy delegation from this community. Johnson and W. O. James, the two Celia sports, decided to honor O'Neill with their presence, leaving their wives and family, well provided for, at home. There were many at our county seat, who enjoyed meeting these gentlemen especially W. O., who is a good advertisement for this country and carries it right to the front.

A real farm relief, in the form of a few nice rain showers, has been received in these parts lately, and it didn't take Adam McMullen to invoke it, either.

The Celia base ball winners are going to cross bats with the Stuart base ball outfit on the Stuart diamond Sunday, July 1st, and promises to give them one of the worst beatings in history. Atta boy, we'er for you.

A number of the neighbors were treated to an ice cream social at the Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Kissinger home, Monday evening. A sort of an affair in honor of the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Oscar and Leora Fullerton. Quite a number were present and got outside of eight gallons of ice cream. According to the congratulations and well wishes expressed by those present the happy young couple has a bright and long future before them or at least 'till there is silver threads among the gold. There were a few eligible young ladies present who were reminded that this is a leap year, but about half of it is gone. The neighbors are looking for a few more ice cream socials soon.
