The Methodist Church in Atkinson was the scene of the August 8 wedding of Bette Coxbill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Coxbill of Atkinson and Jerald L. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cox of Rushville.

The Rev. Charles H. Gates solemnized the 3 p.m. ceremony before an altar decorated with cathedral candelabra and baskets of yellow and white gladioli and Peter John mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, appeared in a floor length gown of silk organza and lace over taffeta fashioned in a princess line. The empire bodice of lace featured a square neckline and brief lace sleeves. The princess lines of the full skirt had an inset of miniature pleats with a lace peplum at the hip line and fell into a back interest bustle puff. Two lace garlands adorned the front of the full skirt which ended in an isle wide train. Her pure silk illusion veil was held by a petal cap of sequins and pearls and caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of white roses and stephanotis trimmed with ivy and satin streamers.

Miss Audrey Coxbill was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Virginia Hogan of Lincoln, Miss Elma Windhusen of Hooper, and Mrs. Edna Robinson, Jr. of Petersburg were bridesmaids. Their empire dresses of princess style were mint green chiffon over taffeta with half sleeves and full flared skirts falling into soft pleats in the back. The pleats were held by large taffeta bows. Their pearl tipped petal hats of taffeta and shirred chiffon were trimmed with pearl bands and tulle. They wore matching satins slippers and carried cascades of yellow feathery chrysanthemums with satin streamers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Coxbill chose beige lace. Mrs. Cox chose blue crepe, both had beige accessories. Both mothers and grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Maude Clifford of Atkinson, wore corsages of white cymbidium orchids.
