CARDS OF THANKS

I WISH TO THANK everyone for the many lovely cards, letters, gifts and visits while I was a patient at St. Anthony's hospital at O'Neill. A special thank you to Mrs. Dickerson never had anything to do with Vanderlinde's money. As only about half of the Wednesday morning defense testimony was being admitted, because of repeated protests from the prosecution, I believe on this issue; they do not tend to prove or disprove any of the issues in this case; the law provides conviction of murder does not require motive; the prosecution has made no effort to show that financial disagreement was involved, except for whatever testimony along these lines that Neylan Franch gave. The defense attorneys were insistent upon admission of certain records and, as the morning wore on, the prosecution relinquished something on their protests. P. E. Spencer of Napier was among the many witnesses called by the defense. His sometimes humorous remarks elicited smiles and laughter from almost everyone including Mrs. Dickerson. Spencer's homey testimony, concerning Vanderlinde's work on his place, included; "Sadie being supervising, telling Franklin how to do it." The statement provoked Mrs. Dickerson's first departure from a sullen appearance at the trial.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON . . . By far the defense's best witness was Doctor Holyoke. He was on the stand nearly two hours. Holyoke said he and Dr. Clarence McWhorter, University of Nebraska medical college pathologist (the latter was at the O'Neill trial following the exhumation at the request of the prosecution) confined their examination of Vanderlinde's body to the head. They studied the wound above the ear, near the right temple, lifted off the skull cap, and studied the wound. Holyoke told the court a piece of skull bone and dura (membrane under the bone) were introduced as exhibits.

A high point of Holyoke's testimony came when the bone from Vanderlinde's skull and the dura were shown to the jury. Holyoke discussed at length experiments of putting a similar bit (cadaver, at his Omaha laboratory), also putting the bit through plywood with measured weights and heights and varied the results. He said he was determining the relative "penetrability" of bone and plywood. A brace-and-bit, comparable to the death weapon, and a piece of plywood were brought into the courtroom for Holyoke to conduct a courtroom demonstration, but the prosecution succeeded in heading off the experiment and Holyoke's conclusions on grounds that laboratory conditions with dry bones differed from on-the-spot, unpracticed drilling into the head of a live young man.

Holyoke said the hole in Vanderlinde's head was forced, not drilled. But he agreed with McWhorter's written report that probing of the hole with other instruments after Vanderlinde's death could alter the hole. Holyoke said his experiments in his laboratory were conducted without knowing there had been probing after the man's death.

Holyoke testified there were "splinterings" of bone under the skull bone. He theorized that if the death bit had been used as a drill there would have been curred shaving on the bit. On the bit he examined in the laboratory he said he found stains, minute chips bone, fine hair adhered, some debris." Holyoke said the hole in Vanderlinde's head was irregular. He also testified the hole in the scalp and the hole in the bone were "slightly out of register."

The prosecution dryly charged that Holyoke was "more expert at drilling holes, because of all of the experimentation, than the defendant whose deed was done hurriedly." Spectators left the courtroom Wednesday wondering if Mrs. Dickerson will take the stand in her own defense Thursday morning.

A big schedule of basketball awaits the Eagles this weekend as they play Atkinson Friday night, here in O'Neill and journey to Albion Saturday night for another game.

Cardinals Hot First Quarter;

Down Stuart To Add Third Win

St. Mary's Cardinals continued their winning ways Friday night in a 66-34 romp over the Stuart Broncos. Using the platoon system, Coach Don Templemeyer used the first string to pile up a 26-6 first quarter advantage.

The Cardinals big height advantage paved the way in the first quarter with Jerry Gokle netting 5 fielders and Larry Mudloff made the first six points. St. Mary's had more than 20 points before Stuart scored.

The reserve unit had trouble finding the range in the second quarter and managed only 4 points while Stuart was adding 8. The two teams retired for the intermission with O'Neill sporting a 30-14 lead.

Templemeyer sent an all-energetic contingent into action for the third quarter with Gale Stevens leading the point parade with three quick baskets, widened the margin to 31-28.

Ron Schaaf, only 5'2", helped the Broncos cause with three long shots during the third period. Clements led the total scoring for Stuart with 15 points.

Underclassmen finished the game for St. Mary's and notched another 15 points in the final stanza. Stuart added 6 points.
