There probably will be more campaign oratory and printed material circulated than in any election in the last 20 years, most political observers guess.

They also feel this may well be the hottest fighting within parties for primary nomination in many years.

The next two months will only be a sample of what is to come after the May 10 primary when oratory is expected to be extra rough.

At stake for the Democrats in the fall general election is reversion of partial control of the statehouse. The Republicans want to get back in.

There has been considerable open scrapping between state officials of both parties in the Capitol

Federal Funds

Nebraska is getting from 47 to 56 million dollars yearly in funds from the federal government.

That's the report of the Council of State Governments.

The bulk of the money yearly is for highway construction and public welfare.

Meanwhile, the Nebraska Citizens Council, a private tax research group, reports Nebraskans in 1960 will pay about 31 cents of every tax dollar to local and state governments and the remainder to the federal government.

In 1960, says the council, the average Nebraskan will pay about $170 in federal, state and local taxes, compared with $280 in 1946 and $70 in 1940. That's a 68% boost from 1946 to 1960.

Per capita income is expected to be $1,898 in 1960, a 65 per cent hike from the $1,151 of 1946, the council said.

Ag Research

One of the most active groups in state government currently is the Agricultural Products Research Committee, created by the last Legislature.

Nebraska currently is the only state that has a budget for research in other uses for farm products, primarily grain surpluses.

The Legislature set up a state tax levy to finance research. This is expected to produce from $300,000 to $350,000 per year for six years.

One of the latest projects of the committee is formation of a cooperative organization with Iowa and Missouri to find new outlets for farm products.

Road Speculation

The Advisory State Highway Commission has concerned itself with the problem of what to do about speculation on land earmarked for the Interstate Highway.

The commission is expected to ask the 1961 Legislature to take some action to prevent individuals from buying land after the path of the Interstate is publicly known, developing on it, and then getting a bigger price when the ground is bought by the state.

Currently, the legal division of the highway department is studying a particular situation in Omaha where the city council has authorized a housing development on land designated for the Interstate. It will report officially to the commission at its next meeting later this month.

Airline

The State of Nebraska feels that Frontier Airlines' operating certificate should be cancelled and another local carrier authorized to operate in the Cornhusker state.

The State Aeronautics Department has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for a delay into April in order to answer a request by Frontier to the CAB to drop its northern Nebraska route.

State Aeronautics Director Jack Obbink says it is the quality of service which generates traffic and he charges that Frontier has carried out a "planned process" to prove that service is not needed instead of trying to build it up.

Obbink says the state has no choice other than to push for another carrier in that other efforts to remedy local airline service with Frontier have failed.

Parolees

State Parole Officer Eugene Neal says he has had considerable success this winter in obtaining permanent employment for paroled inmates of the penitentiary and men's reformatory.

Finding work for these men saves the state considerable amounts of money, he commented.

For instance, Neal said, those on parole during January earned $15,841 in jobs during the month whereas it would have cost $14,154 to keep them in institutions.

That does not include what it would cost the state to care for their families through welfare payments.
