

Page People "Lost" In Friday Snow Storm

Friday's April Fool snow storm climaxed the long winter with some of the worst travel conditions in the area seen yet this year.

Twenty-five cars were stalled on highway 20 between Orchard and the hill east of Page Saturday. Snow plow equipment worked throughout the night unsmiling the traffic complications.

Another result of the storm was the temporary "unknown whereabouts" of two Page men who were in the storm Friday. Tony Mudloff, a Verdrie snow plow operator, was stuck between the L. G. Bernholtz and Earl Parks corner. When his attempts to telephone for help failed because of disrupted phone service, he spent the night at the Parks home.

Frank Cronk and his wife were stalled when they couldn't gain access to the travel route to their home. Page people concerned over the whereabouts of these people learned only late Saturday what had happened when telephone service was restored.
