Recruiters Seek Men To Man Omaha, Lincoln Nike Missile Bases

US Army Recruiters in this area have been granted authority by the Department of the Army to enlist a special 70-man group of new enlistees from this area to train as a group for assignment with the units which will man the NIKE-HERCULES missile sites in the Omaha and Lincoln vicinities.

There will be four missile sites in the Omaha and Lincoln areas. These sites are part of the ever growing North American Air Defense Command that is charged with the responsibility of protecting the North American Continent from air attack. NIKE units have been guarding the principal cities and strategic areas of the United States against unwanted air "tourists" since 1953.

The 70-man group will be enlisted in special ceremonies in Omaha on June 10th. They will take basic training together and be sent from basic training to either the Omaha or Lincoln sites for specialized or on-the-job training in guided missile and electronics.

According to Master Sergeant William Cousins, Commander of the O'Neill Recruiting Station, this enlistment plan is one of the most desirable assignments offered a group of Iowa-Nebraska men in recent years. "Not only will the men be able to carry their home town friendships into service and receive training in a skilled and technical field, they will be able to enjoy the benefits of being stationed near their homes."
