

Senators Plan Air Conditioning After Hot Days in Special Session

By Melvin Paul

LINCOLN—There was one thing certain in the special session of the Legislature. That is, senators won't long stand for working without air conditioning. It is expected that the special meeting which ran into this week, will spur work toward cooling the legislative chamber. The shirt-sleeved lawmakers toiled in sticky, hot weather during their special meeting. The heat takes a heavy toll on energy of the lawmakers who expend much of this in debate and maneuvers on the floor. There is money in a fund being accumulated for maintenance of the Capitol and its grounds. Complete air conditioning of the structure with funds available now is not feasible.

But it took an August meeting of the solons to start the ball rolling on air conditioning by areas of the building. The governor wanted a temporary installation put in for the lawmakers but the law would permit expenditure of the money only for a permanent installation.

Time prohibited a permanent installation between the time the call for the special session issued and when the senators met. Fans were placed strategically throughout the chamber but they interfered with hearing of the debate.

Some senators remarked that the heat would not have been so bad had they been able to dress for it.

State Taxes
It will cost Nebraskans less to pay for running state government this year. The State Board of Equalization saw to that when it cut the 1960 state property tax levy two cents for every $1,000 taxable value of goods held by Nebraskans.

The previous levy was $8.45 per $1,000 assessed value. The new one is $8.25. A sharper reduction had been anticipated but State Tax Commissioner Forrest Johnson said a State Supreme Court decision cut the value of railroads which accounted for the levy not being reduced further.

The High Court had set up a formula for assessing railroads in handing down a decision on an appeal from values set by the board last year.

The board said state agencies need $20.4 million to operate this year from tax funds. An additional $16.5 million is available from cash receipts as taxes on cigarettes and liquor and drivers license fees.

Also to be raised from tax funds is $3.5 million for buildings at state institutions, some $800,000 for the University of Nebraska College of Medicine physical plant, $1.6 million for the teachers retirement fund, a third of a million for research into new uses for agricultural products and some $400,000 for improving state parks.

Board of Control
Pay hikes have been handed out to all but one of the superintendents of state institutions under jurisdiction of the Board of Control. The action was by vote of two members of the board—Vice Chairman Harold Peterson and Mrs. Ethel Kirwin, member.

Whereupon, Chairman Charles Leeman who said he was absent because of illness commented he did not approve of the action in boosting the pay of the Kearney superintendent.

He said he did not approve of a $100 per month boost for Wiliam Ettinger, new superintendent of the Kearney Boys Training School.

Ettinger has only been head of the institution since June when the former superintendent, Nolan Ellandson, was ousted by the two board members, without knowledge of Leeman. Ettinger should have to prove himself, Leeman commented.

The board, however, later was unanimous in hiring a new personnel director, and a supervisor of education. Lawrence C. Meyers of Lincoln was named as personnel director and Mrs. Olive Erskine of Scottsbluff to head education services. Meyers assumes his job at once, Mrs. Erskine in September.

C. P. Weidenhaler resigned as personnel director to go to a similar position in Missouri and Dr. Vernon Hengate, education director, accepted a post with a college in Colorado.

Appointments
The Legislature declined to take up a list of appointments submitted by Gov. Ralph Brooks for confirmation. This leaves the next governor free to make some choices for key positions, such as the Advisory State Highway Commission. Also on the list was Forrest Johnson, appointed by Brooks as State Tax Commissioner.

The list could be submitted by Brooks to the next regular session of the Legislature. It is expected the new governor, whether he is a Democrat or Republican, may have changes.

Brooks is not seeking re-election to the governorship but is running for the U. S. Senate against Sen. Carl Curtis.

What makes America Great?
(Third in a Series on the Declaration of Independence)

"we hold these truths to be self-evident..."

How should men regard one another under a system of government which first recognizes the existence of God?
This was a question which the Founding Fathers had to answer in establishing our form of Government. This was their answer:
"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal..."
They proclaimed all men to be equal. True, some men may be stronger than others, some more physically perfect than others, some born with more material wealth than others. But in the eyes of God, all men are equal.
Our Founding Fathers acknowledged this fact: that each man has individual dignity with rights equal to other men.
The Founding Fathers knew that the strength of the nation must spring from free men with equal opportunities and that freedom could flourish only where men of all races, creeds and colors were regarded as equals.
The dignity of each man as an individual first became one of the first concepts of American government.
