Civil Defense Department Plans $300,000 Underground Building

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN-The State of Nebraska is becoming more and more conscious of civil defense preparations. Since the office of civil defense was set up under Gov. Val Peterson who wound up a six year term in 1953, there has been steady progress.

Legislation has been enacted providing a line of succession and other emergency measures in case of attack. This requires a Constitutional amendment and will be on the November ballot. Subject of the amendment is highly controversial.

Now, the state is planning a $300,000 bomb proof underground building in Lincoln to serve as the seat of government in case of enemy attack. A fallout shelter will be constructed in the basement of the governor's mansion at a cost of Of the cost for the government center, $140,000 would be the state's share, obtained from the special institutional building fund levy. The remainder would be footed by the federal government. In addition to housing state offices in an emergency, the building would provide overflow space for use by state departments as soon as the structure is built. It would be located within minutes travel time from the Capitol, immediately north of the statehouse about a mile and a quarter.

The building would be self contained, have its own power and carry 14 days emergency supplies of food and water. Construction is not expected to start before next summer.

Aging Population

The problems of the aged have come in for a close look by a group of persons interested in them. At a Nebraska Conference on the Aging, similar to the White House Conference on Children and Youth, the group opposed urging a liberlization of social security benefits.

But in drafting its suggested program for submission to the 1961 White House Conference on the subject, the Nebraska committee said the Legislature should supply funds for checking a portion of the elder citizens to determine medical needs.

It recommended a closer relationship between the medical profession and nursing homes and development of rehabilitation facilities at all general hospitals with a capacity of more than 50

The Nebraska group also opposes any government plan to slow voluntary health insurers from further growth and service. Also recommended was establishment of a state commission to act as a clearing house for information on Nebraska's senior

The committee also feels that construction of recreation centers the elderly in communities should be encouraged.

Schools and Industry

There need to be more graduates of technical schools in Nebraska. That's the belief of Dr. Decker, state education Decker said technical schools do more than anything else to boost industry. He cited the demand for such graduates at the Nebraska Vocational-Technical school at Milford. About 200 are graduated at Milford a year and two private schools in Omaha turn out about 250 each, Decker said. He added the demand for these is so great that it is a problem to keep the students from quitting their courses to take outside employ-

Meanwhile, the Tenth Federal Reserve District had something to say about industry in Nebraska between 1954 and 1958.

The district said the number of manufacturing workers in the state dropped 1.2 per cent during the period, although the dollar value of goods manufactured increased 28.8 per cent.

During the four years, the district continued, there was a boost of 8.7 per cent in the number of firms in Nebraska employing more than 20 persons. The district said in 1958 the state had 59,653 manufacturing workers and 411 firms employing more than 20 people. On the dollar volume which climbed from $394.2 million to $507.6 million, the district said some of the hike could be the re-

Ways of making a wardrobe last longer are of interest to all of us. Perhaps the following hints can be of help to you or someone in your family.

Remember, though, good buy-ing before the clothes get to the closet is important too. Read the tags. They often tell the colorfastness, fiber content, and percent of shrinkage. Included too will be information on crease resistance plus laundry and dry cleaning care. Identify the garment to which the tag applies Keep the tags together in an envelope or file box. Some hints for care of clothes follow. Air clothes often to keep them fresh. Protect them by keeping in garment bags. Hats in hat boxes. Brush garments after wearing. They'll stay clean longer and you'll cut down on cleaning bills. Press clothes often. But remove stains beforehand. The heat of an iron may set stains permanently. If you're not certain a garment can be washed, don't wash Clothes' life can be shortened by wrong or too-frequent dry cleaning. Repairs should be made before cleaning. Tell the cleaner what you want done with a garment. If a fabric requires a special finish, tell him so. If you know what caused a particular stain, tell him that. If buttons or ornaments need to be removed, ask him to do so. Mend clothes as soon as a tear appears to prevent it from becoming larger. Protect clothes from perspiration. Use dress shields, a deodorant or an anti-perspirant. Don't apply perfumes directly to fabrics.

An apron or smock is good protection when working in kitchen or around the house.

Don't put heavy items in pockets. They'll stretch out of shape. Hang clothes on wooden or padded hangers. Knit garments, including sweaters should not be hung but folded and placed in a drawer.

If leather shoes get wet, apply saddle soap or castor oil; polish when dry. Have shoes repaired before they're too run-down. Wearing the same clothes several days in a row wears them out quickly. This applies to shoes,
