"My Kitchen Was Always Cold Before We Converted to New Electric Heat"

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burruss of near Clarks, Nebraska, are no newcomers to flameless electric heat. They converted their two-story farm house three years ago - and they're not a bit sorry they switched to electric heat.

"Wish we could have had it 25 years ago," mused Mr. Burruss, a veteran Clarks stockman. "We really enjoy being able to control the heat in each room."*

Mrs. Burruss is equally enthusiastic: "We spend a lot of time in the kitchen and it was always cold before," she said.

There are 1,360 square feet in the Burruss home, and the total heating bill for 1961 was $182 - an average of less than $25 per month for the heating season. Why don't you investigate new heat for an older home? Nothing like it for comfort convenience and economy. See your public power people soon!

*all electrically-heated homes have individual room thermostatic heat controls.
