A Poem From Mrs. Eby ...

-A Bad Example- He whipped his boy, for lying, and his cheeks were flaming red; and of course there's no denying, there was truth in what he said. That a liar's always hated, but the fellow knew that his father often stated many things that were untrue. He caught the youngster cheating and he sent him up to bed, and it's useless now repeating all the bitter things he said: He talked of honor loudly, as if a lesson to be learned and forgot he'd boasted of the cunning tricks he'd turned. He heard the youngster swearing and he punished him again. He'd have no boy as daring as to utter words profane. Yet the youngster could have told him, poor misguided little elf, that it seemed unfair to scold him when he often cursed himself. All in vain is splendid preaching and the noble things we say. All our talk is wasted teaching if we do not lead the way. You can never, by reviewing all the sermons on the shelves, keep the younger hands from doing what we often do ourselves. (Author Unknown)
