A Poem From Mrs. Eby . . .

Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecution and distress for Christ's sake. For when I am weak then am I strong. 2nd Cor. 12:10.

THE THORN
George Matheson, the old blind Scotch preacher much loved as a great fundamental Bible teacher, said, "Lord! I have never thanked Thee for my thorn. I have thanked thousands of times for my roses and the beautiful things my life still possess.

But never for the thorn with which I was born. Teach me the value of this cross when I feel forlorn, teach me so I can climb to Thee by path of blind pain, and like Thee Lord the cup can drain. Help me take pleasure in life without strength, yes, by being misunderstood and driven at length.

For when I am weak and driven out on a limb, I can turn to God with a claim on Him. Showing me my tears a rainbow have made, alas for the man who never sees the stars shine through the Cypress trees. That joy its true my earthly eyes can't know, but someday I'll know as onward I go. For someday when the mists have rolled away I'll see His face so clear that day, so help me be happy though a thorn I possess. Like Paul I'll bear it and sorrow suppress.

Nowadays farm markets depend on this span of horsepower!

The span of horses that used to do the work on every farm was long ago replaced by machines which do the work better. But most of America's farms depend on a new "team" which helps distribute farm products to ever-increasing markets.

This span of horsepower is made up of the farmer's own truck, which he uses to deliver raw materials to primary markets (such as cannery, mill and processing plant), and the inter-city truck, which delivers the finished products to stores all over the United States.

The inter-city truck takes ketchup made from Indiana tomatoes to Idaho; takes cotton goods from Southern mills to New York garment centers, and finished clothing to Chicago and San Antonio. It takes Minneapolis flour made from Kansas wheat to bakeries and food stores in Kentucky and Iowa, and Sandhills beef to the Omaha market. And, it makes the market for all these products bigger because wherever consumers are, there trucks go also!

Both kinds of trucks—the farm truck and the inter-city truck—are essential to the preservation and the expansion of farm markets in years to come!
