JUST A MOMENT!!

We are Republicans of long standing . . .

Of Tricks And Lies

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

... but first we are Americans, and fully aware of the responsibility this implies.

We believe that any candidate should expect the nominal support of his party . . . but this is a two-way street. We feel that there is an even more impelling responsibility on the part of the candidate to run for office on his program and on his record . . .

... And to display in his campaigning the moral integrity with which he will administer his office!!

Governor Morrison has had an independent and honorable administration and gave to the Republican party the opportunity and challenge for a kind of campaign that would give to Nebraska the best kind of leadership.

Unfortunately, the moral principal is being ignored here in Nebraska by the Republican candidate for the high office of Governor. The reprint of this editorial from The Lincoln Star (Sept. 13, 1962) expresses best the reason why we — and we believe thousands of other Republicans — should and must support Governor Morrison for re-election.

Love is the foundation of the greatest commandment of them all but what is the greatest evil, the greatest wrong, the most serious offense against mankind? Is it greater to deceive a man or to lie to him? Obviously there can be no ready-made answer to this because the choice would involve many facts that would have to be known before an intelligent decision could be reached. What can be said in general is that neither thing is very commendable.

Thus, we can find no particular merit in the case of either Gov. Frank Morrison or former Lincoln Mayor Bennett S. Martin. The case, as is now well known, involves a letter in which Martin sought campaign contributions for GOP candidate for governor Fred Seaton. To many, the issue may seem like a great deal of nonsense and perhaps it is but many facts that are disturbing. Morrison asked Martin to come to his office and Martin did so, without any advance knowledge of why he was summoned.

Morrison then called in the press and confronted Martin with the letter which the governor said was a pack of lies and demanded that Martin retract or deny it. It may not have been quite cricket for the governor to get Martin into a public meeting without Martin's knowledge. But this little trick is peanuts compared to the complete dishonesty of the GOP attack in the governor's campaign—an attack subtended by and practiced by Seaton himself.

It was the opinion of many people that the last race for governor produced about as poor a GOP campaign in many respects as might be expected to come along in quite some time. To date, however, Fred Seaton has matched the 1960 race and now appears even to be surpassing it. The episode involving Martin involves more complete distortion and unadulterated dishonesty than we have seen in a good long time.

Martin's role in the thing is actually of not too much significance. His was a form letter and authorship of the thing was probably not even known by Martin. The letter is part and parcel of the strategy planned by Seaton and Republican State Chairman Robert Denney. This strategy is to link Morrison with President John F. Kennedy but it is being done in an insidious way. The letter stated that Morrison was getting big sums of money from outside Nebraska, that he was being dictated to from Washington and implied that he was out to destroy the free enterprise system.

All three things are absolute lies. Not a single assertion along these lines has yet been proven by the Republicans and cannot be proven. The amazing thing is that a man of Seaton's presumed caliber would countenance this kind of political mud-slinging. The fact is that Morrison has less, by a substantial amount, than $10,000 at this time with which to conduct a campaign. In this day, that isn't a drop in the bucket. His own party is horribly disorganized and divided and he can look for no assistance there whatsoever. He has the endorsement of labor but is no great champion of theirs so will get precious little, if anything, from that source. Personally, he is a pauper compared to either Seaton or Martin and if money were the deciding factor in this race, Morrison would be an absolute fool even to have filed for office.

The GOP has tried to twist this latest episode into an attack on the governor on the grounds that he is destroying the rights of individuals to engage in political activity, that he is dragging the supposedly impartial Resources Division of state government into politics and that he once received fund support from a former (now deceased) state employee.

The latter case is as well left alone since it has been dragged without proof through just about every court in the land within the past two years. This newspaper itself conducted an extensive investigation of the subject of the late Alvin N. Scissors and the 1960 Morrison campaign and was unable to unearth one piece of solid evidence to indict the governor.

As to individual political activity and the Resources Division, both are the products of GOP mud-slinging, not the actions of the governor. Seaton and Denney have spread the seed of distrust and dishonesty, not Morrison. If this were just another political dog fight, it could perhaps be overlooked. But it is more than this. This episode involves an integral and vital part of the GOP campaign. It is founded in a hotbed of irresponsibility and lack of integrity and the roots were planted by Seaton and Denney.

If this is the kind of candidate that Fred Seaton is, we do not think the people of Nebraska want him for governor for even a day. We believe Seaton has betrayed the enviable record of public service that was his and that is a serious mark of weakness on his part. It is somewhat typical of the desperate lengths to which the GOP in Nebraska will go to win an election—a desperation we doubt is shared by the rank-and-file members of its party.
