ELECTRIC HEAT

LA DONNA PLAZA
TEN-PLEX APARTMENT IS
"ALL-ELECTRIC"

J. D. Wilkins, Geneva, Owner

La Donna Plaza, Geneva

Mr. J. D. Wilkins, Geneva, built the La Donna Plaza to provide the utmost in modern living. After checking into all the different possibilities, he chose to go "ALL-ELECTRIC." He found it easy to rent his apartments, a fact he attributes to Electric Heat. His tenants find it clean, comfortable, safe and ECONOMICAL!

ELECTRICALLY HEATED
Apartments cost less than 17c square foot
average during last year's heating season.

Here's what Mr. Wilkins says:

"We are pleased to state that the operating costs of ELECTRIC HEAT is truly economical. In fact, last winter the average cost was less than 17c a square foot for each apartment. We are looking to building another tenplex in Geneva and we will use ELECTRIC HEAT again!"

IF YOU'RE PLANNING TO BUY, BUILD, or REMODEL... INVESTIGATE ELECTRIC HEAT!

FLAMELESS ELECTRIC HEAT IN GENEVA TENPLEX GIVES YEAR-AROUND COMFORT

Before J. W. Wilkins of Geneva built his ten two-bedroom apartments he studied electric heating systems—even to the point of installing baseboard units in one room of his own home. "I liked what I learned, and decided to go ahead with a complete, all-electric installation in these apartments," he reported. "We haven't had a complaint in nearly a year of operation, and we have a waiting list for vacancies." Mrs. Ruth Kinter, (left, above) one of the residents, reports "no hot spots, and it's clean and quiet here." Len Davis (right) a semi-retired insurance broker, says, "there's so little to do with electric heat—it's wonderful. Mrs. Davis and I really appreciate the evenness of the heat and the room-by-room temperature control system." All-electric living (including radiant electric heat, air-conditioning, range, quick-recovery hot water heater, washer and dryer, refrigerator and all other electric appliances) costs the Davis's less than $19 per month. Other apartments are less. The apartments were planned for older people who want to live in comfort with a minimum of maintenance worries... but you, too, can enjoy the benefits of radiant electric heat and all-electric living.
