

A Poem
From Mrs. Eby ...

—Indian Summer—
Oh! I love Indian summers bright warm days when all the worlds covered with a soft warm haze.
Just as if the weather man was trying before winter arrives, to bid us a warm farewell trying summers beauty to survive.
The trees though seem a bit weary and are taking on a somber hue, that have been so bright and cheery the whole summer through; and the flowers are beginning to droop a bit though they're still trying beauty to submit.
Out in the meadow, bright golden rods hue just seem to defy what Jack Frost is going to do.
And carpet of green grass becoming a bit browned, to fit the mature look shining all around. So let's be happy and enjoy every day, forget the lovely summer that's now passed away.
A different kind of beauty in winter will come, varieties the spice of life so don't feel glum, just be glad and thank God above for the beauties of nature and His marvelous love. That remains the same if its warm or cold and enjoy this season when the world's turning gold.
