State Capitol News

Lowest Presidential Vote Since '12

LINCOLN — Nebraska's primary election was unusual in several respects but true to form in others. Probably most significant was the lack of citizens who went to the polls. It was the lowest vote for a presidential peacetime year since 1912.

Two contests were in doubt after the election had been counted—officially by the two wire news services. They were in the republican contest for lieutenant-governor between State Sen. Dwight Burney of Hartington and Carl Swanson of Omaha.

Burney was speaker of the last legislature and has been acting lieutenant-governor. Swanson is a former state treasurer.

The other contest was between Joseph Benches and Phil Allen of Omaha for the democratic nomination for congress in the Second district.

Officially, the results won't be known until June 4 when the state canvassing board meets. It is composed of the governor, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer and attorney-general.

Nebraska will certify the vote, on the basis of returns made by county canvassing boards. The slowness in counting the vote was a trifle unusual. It was two full days after polls closed.

Newspapers Remiss?

Nebraska newspapers were said to be remiss in their duties in keeping voters informed on candidates, a state senator has charged. For The Frontier's answer to that charge, see editorial: "Weeklies Remiss in Duties," on page 2.

Fred Mitchell, who is employ-moisture for crops, according to a state banking department spokesman. The spokesman commented on a report on the 293 state-chartered banks.

He said demand deposits in the banks declined $19 million, 398 thousand, during the first quarter of the year.

However, this decline in deposits was accompanied by a considerable reduction in loans.

The principal liquidation in loans was in the Commodity Credit corporation loans, which decreased from $22,800,000 on December 31, 1955, to $13,000,000 at the beginning of April. Most of the reduction represented wheat loans.

Also declining was the amount of U.S. government bonds held by the banks during the period. The drop was occasioned by the redemption of bonds to meet customers' withdrawals from their deposits.

In a regular report, it was cited as an indication that the state's farm economy is standing up well that the amount which the state banks loaned on farm land increased only $31,500 during the period.

Installment loans, however, showed an increase of $300,000, mostly on automobiles and in single payment loans for personal expenditures.

The report showed the total resources of the 293 banks amounted to $452 million 751 thousand.
