

Atkinson Wins on 2 O'Neill Bobbles Rally in 9th Breaks Up Tight Game

ATKINSON—Two costly O'Neill errors in the ninth inning enabled the Atkinson entry in the North-Central Nebraska day-and-night league to down the Rockets, 2-1, Wednesday, July 18. The game was played at Atkinson.

Dean Fleming started the ninth inning rally with Atkinson trailing, 0-1. Fleming singled, Frickel, who substituted on base for Fleming, stole second. Connot, Atkinson catcher, sent a bounder for the shoe of Maynard Morrow, O'Neill first-sacker, and Connot got on safely.

Morrow tried to pick off Frickel at third, the throw was late, and Connot advanced to second.

Pfister shorted one through the O'Neill buntstop, bringing in Frickel and Connot and producing the victory.

Nebraska Is 'Blank Spot'

LINCOLN—Distances between many Nebraska cities might be shortened in the next 12 months.

The way that can come about is through the action of the civil aeronautics board in Washington, D.C. Pending before the board is the request of the Nebraska aeronautics department for local feeder airline service.

Nebraska right now is in the center of a "blank spot" as far as feeder airlines go.

Feeder lines channel passengers and freight to terminal points in Nebraska; these would be Omaha and Lincoln.

Now, there is transcontinental service to Grand Island, North Platte and Scottsbluff by United Airlines, to Sottsbuff and Alliance by Western and to Norfolk by Braniff.

But the state aeronautics department wants CAB to order the "trunk" line service discontinued in favor of local service to 13 cities—Beatrice, Hastings, Kearney, McCook, Imperial, Sidney, Grand Island, North Platte, Scottsbluff, Alliance, Chadron, Ainsworth and Norfolk.

The department feels that local service would better serve Nebraskans and keep the state abreast of commercial aviation trends.

But Scottsbluff, North Platte and Grand Island told CAB examiner they don't want to lose the trunk service of the United which flies Convairs and operates without government subsidy for a local line, using DC-3 equipment and which would require supplemental federal funds.

United said also it doesn't want to pull out of the three cities. But Rolland Harr, director of airports for the department, said United is providing only "token service".

And, he said, the area can't support a trunk line as well as local carriers.

Harr says the network of local carriers would "change the economy" of Nebraska and help attract new industry. Cities, isolated virtually in the past, would have access to an airline, he said.

Many businesses could profit by the fast service offered by the airlines, he added.

The CAB will have three questions to decide:

1. Should Nebraska have feeder service?
2. If so, who should serve the line? Four feeder lines—Ozark, Central, Frontier, and North Central—are bidding to serve Nebraska and six other states in the Midwest.
3. If feeder service is authorized should the three trunk airlines be required to suspend their operations?

Harr believes the decision will have a far reaching effect on the progress of commercial aviation in Nebraska.
